DEVLIN RULES ON AUTO INSURANCE

Acting Attorney-General James H. Devlin, in an opinion given to Insurance Commissioner Wesley E. Monk today, ruled that an automobile insurance policy which combines the requirements of the new compulsory law on personal liability insurance with that of property damage may lawfully be approved. The opinion states, however, that the new motor liability provision made compulsory by law, effective the first of the year, cannot be attached as a rider or an endorsement to another policy.

Two Little Girls' Motto

KATHLEEN TOMLINSON, six-year-old daughter of a clergyman, owned a half interest in a rabbit. Her brother, owning the other half, decided to sell. King George saw the girl crying, bought the brother's half; now she owns the whole rabbit.

The brother got ten shillings, five times the rabbit's worth. King George got ten million dollars' worth of free advertising for $2.50. American newspapers spent thousands cabling the important news across the ocean.

But, as Herbert Spencer said, it would be as wrong to deprive the British of their King as to take her doll from a little girl. Something nice to play with.

"THE WAY of a man with a maid" was "too wonderful" for the old prophet. The way of a maid with a man puzzles and disturbs a man from Detroit. He came to New York with thousands of dollars, stolen from a bank. But now he is "through with women." Two ladies that came with him, described as "two little Buffalo vaudeville girls," told him candidly that their motto was, "Never give a sucker an even break."

The bank thief laughed heartily and rented a little flat on Riverside Drive. The little ladies left that flat without warning, taking his traveling bag and his remaining $5,000 in cash.

THE MAN now thinks he made a mistake when he left his wife and two children in Detroit.

FILM SHEIK HEALTH AT SPA HOME OF ABRAMS

New York, Aug. 20.—Rudolph Valentino, now considered out of danger, plans to spend his convalescent period at the Summer residence of Hiram Abrams, film magnate, at Poland Springs, Me.

He will go to the New England resort for a rest as soon as his physicians pronounce him well enough to make the journey, according to present expectations. Arrangements are now being made to care for him there in a fashion appropriate for a priceless star of the silver screen.

It will be his first trip through the New England States for many months and he is said to be looking forward to his sojourn there with keen anticipation.

Further improvement was noted today by his physicians at the Polyclinic Hospital and he is now considered to be definitely on the road to recovery from the peril he was in as a result of the peritonitis that followed an operation for appendicitis and stomach ulcer.

He faces three more weeks in the hospital before he will be able to go to Poland Springs and it will be months before he can return to work.

But cheerful and calm in spite of

TWO LIFE POLICIES IN WOMNA'S NAME LEAD TO 3 DEATH PROBES

Dudley, Aug. 20.—A woman was revealed today by the investigating authorities as the beneficiary of two insurance policies on the life of Anatos Gelos, a farmhand, whose body was exhumed and examined today for traces of poison.

While performing the autopsy on Gelos' remains and making tentative plans for a similar examination of the body of Frank Wilson, another employe of the same farm, the authorities announced that they were also incidentally making an inquiry into the reported death of an infant on the farm.

The beneficiary of the policies on Gelos' life, according to State Detective Edward J. McCarthy, is Mrs. Eva Carmanaucka, who lives on the farm of Joseph Skirta where both Gelos and Wilson worked.

Her claim that she is the wife of the owner of the farm is being investigated.

McCarthy said there are two policies, one for $240 taken out in 1916 and another for $600 taken out two years ago.

If traces of poison are found in Gelos' vital organs, the autopsy on the other man's body will be made immediately.

Wilson died two months ago, supposedly from gastric ulcers and alcoholism, while Gelos is reported to have choked to death on a piece of meat last Saturday, according to others on the Skirka farm.

The authorities admitted they were not satisfied with statements made by those at the farm, and de-

JAIL RUM SHORTAGE MOUNTS TO 94 CASES

Peabody, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—The shrinkage in the liquor transferred from the city lockup to the owner, Nick Pappas, early today by court order was grown to 94 cases instead of the 40 cases first reported missing. A final check revealed that 91 cases out of the 694 cases of whiskey seized by the raiding officers in May were gone, while the 45 cases of gin were short of the seized number by three.

An investigation was begun to determine how such large amounts could be taken from the locked storage room at the city jail. Pappas indicated today he would not make formal protest at getting back less than was taken from him. He said he was quite satisfied with the result of his three years' fight for possession.

The transfer was made early this morning in trucks guarded by seventeen officers. The bootlegged goods were placed in a specially constructed cellar of the Pappas barn where two city officers and two State officers mounted guard with loaded rifles. No one was permitted on the premises except on business.

SHEA DENIES INNES PLANT GRAFT RUMORS

City Park Commissioner James B. Shea, today emphatically denied that any plants, flowers or other products of city greenhouses had been presented to Attorney Charles H. Innes to decorate his Sumner home at Scituate, with his knowledge.

Despite the denial of the commissioner, who, incidentally, has resigned his office to take effect in September, Dist. Atty. Thomas C. O'Brien spent the early hours of the day in investigating the somewhat petty graft charge, an outgrowth of the "contracting scandal" charged against certain city officials.

O'Brien's probe went on also despite the threat of Innes that he would hale the District Attorney into court if he made even the semblance of a graft charge of any kind against him.

One of the park commissioner's subordinates was the first man called to the District Attorney's office today.

Commissioner Shea was not at all pleased that the fact that he had called on the District Attorney at the latter's request yesterday afternoon should have been made public, as the natural inference would be, he thought, that he had told O'Brien of the "presents" to Innes.

The truth was just opposite, according to Commissioner Shea.

BUS AND TRUCK CRASH; 3 WOMEN ARE INJURED

Three women passengers were injured and nearly a score of other passengers, mostly women, were shaken up today when a New York-Boston bus and a heavy truck collided at North Beacon and Market streets, Brighton.

Several women became hysterical as the heavy vehicles crashed with an impact that jolted passengers out of their seats.

The injured are:

Alice E. Kurtz, No. 421 East Sixty-fifth street, New York city; Marie Cohen, No. 1046 Hoe avenue, New York city, and an unidentified woman who left the scene with her husband immediately after the crash.

The husband said he was taking his wife to a hospital.

The bus was operated by Clarence L. Brown of No. 9 Verndale street, Brookline. Henry Parker of No. 76 Rustic st., Roxbury, was the driver of the truck, which was owned by the consolidated Trucking Company of East Cambridge.

Both vehicles were damaged and locked together by the impact.

MEXICAN TROOPS SENT TO AMERICAN BORDER

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 20 (A.P.)—Mexican troops have been ordered to the border, opposite Columbus, N. M., according to Juarez military officials, following discovery of the planned movement of a band of 100 heavily armed men into Mexico in a revolutionary movement.

The plot, discovered by United States agents, was reported by them to Mexican officials at Chihuahua City and Juarez. Details have not been revealed by the investigating officers.

Additional Federal troops have been ordered to Juarez from Chihuahua City, it was said, further strengthening the garrison, which was augmented yesterday by the arrival of 175 soldiers.

Several large shipments of ammunition also have been received from the interior.

The patrol guard of the international bridges, regarded as vital points in case of trouble, also has been strengthened.

Further indications of preparation for emergency is seen in the

DOUBT GUN IN HALL CASE

Philadelphia, Aug. 20 (A.P.)—Police today entertained serious doubts that a pistol thought to have been used in the murder of the Rev. Dr. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills really was the weapon in question.

The pistol, given to the police by William Winterer, a chauffeur, is 32 caliber, of Spanish manufacture. Two bullets recovered from the corpse of Mrs. Mills were of 32 caliber.

It was pointed out, however, that a .32-caliber American cartridge might possibly have been fired in the 32-caliber foreign weapon, although this would be impossible with an American pistol.

The pistol today was in New Jer-

STEVE GUSTIN, HALTED BY SHOTS, IN COURT

Stephen Wallace, alias Stephen Gustin, of Back Bay and Nantasket, halted by four shots in a police chase near Kenmore station, was arraigned today before Judge John Duff in Municipal Court on charges of reckless driving and driving after his license had expired.

At his own request the case was continued to August 31, and bail was fixed at $1,000.

His companion, Thomas Francis, nineteen, of Belvidere street, Revere, was held temporarily and will be arraigned on a charge of drunkenness.

Gustin was driving, with Francis riding beside him. Motorcycle Officer Clark Adair, Station 16, in pursuit, sent a shot through the gasoline tank of the automobile. Patrolman John P. Ryan, Lexington street station, sent a bullet through a rear mud-guard.

The chase started when Adair sighted the coupe speeding by Kenmore station. He caught up with the coupe, and ordered Gustin to halt.

Instead of obeying the command, according to Adair, Gustin increased the speed of the car. A shot, aimed high, caused Gustin to go even faster.

The automobile is registered at the Highway Commission to John J. Moriarty, No. 340 Centre street, Jamaica Plain. A checkup will be made to learn how the vehicle came into possession of the arrested pair.

Episcopate May Appeal to Courts in Struggle

Mexico City, Aug. 20 (A.P.)—The Catholic Episcopate began carefully study of the question whether it shall petition Congress to amend the religious regulations which have caused a cessation of masses and other ceremonies in the Catholic churches or whether it shall make an appeal to the Supreme Court to pass upon the question of the validity of the religious provisions of the constitution.

This step is being taken following receipt by Archbishop Mora Del Rio of a letter from President Calles in answer to a request from the Episcopate for a suspension of the regulations.

The President in his letter informed the Archbishop that he proposed to uphold the Constitution as it relates to churches and declines because of his "political and philosophical convictions to request Congress to amend the fundamental law."

CAN APPEAL TO COURTS.

The President suggests that if the Episcopate desires any modification of the law it may have recourse to an attempt to have Congress change it or appeal to the Supreme Court for relief. He says that if the Episcopate should introduce an amendment bill in Congress he will not use his presidential prerogative to have it withdrawn.

Bishop Diaz, secretary of the Episcopate, commenting upon President Calles' reply, said:

"We must recognize that President Calles is frank in his reply to the Episcopate's letter, as he declares his philosophical and political opinion forbids him from transmitting our request to Congress.

"In the second place, he is granting us the right which the constitution denies clergymen, in admitting that we have the right to make a petition, because the Constitution denies us everything. In the third place, the President admits that we have not rebelled against the laws in ordering a suspension of religious services.

"His reply points out a way to settle the conflict."

American Women in Peril In Fatal Mexican Clash

Mexico City, Aug. 20 (A.P.)—The bitter rivalry between factions in Congress has culminated in a street battle in which Colonel Andreas Garcia was killed and Deputy Marcos Diaz and Santiago Caparros were shot several times through the body.

A lottery ticket vendor and several other persons, among them a woman, passing in an automobile, and ex-Governor Garrido of Tabasco, also were seriously wounded.

Trouble had been anticipated for some time between politicians who are disputing the results of the congressional election held in July, and a guard of Federal troops has been stationed in the chamber to prevent the rival factions from meeting in combat there. The religious situation has been in no way connected with the strife.

The fighting occurred near door to one of Mexico City's fashionable American tea rooms. A number of American women were inside sipping tea at the time and others were entering as bullets whizzed around them.

All but 11 Catholics Freed in Mexican 'Plot'

Mexico City, Aug. 20 (A.P.)—All the Catholics arrested in connection with the alleged conspiracy to foment uprisings throughout the Republic last Sunday, simultaneous with the movement of Gen. Enrique Estrada in California have been released, except three women, whom the police call the leaders of the plot and eight men.

Senora Josefina Nevoa, Senora Luz F. Depreche and Senaita Paz Gomez Llamras are the women being held.

Special dispatches from Puebla say that a Catholic priest has been brought there under arrest from the village of Manuetian. The charges against him were not revealed. Local rumor, however, is that the priest killed the mayor of the village because the mayor refused to open the Catholic church. There is no verification of this.

Advices from Tampico say that a religious riot occurred in the town of Villa Cecilia but that no persons were killed or wounded. The municipal committee in charge of the church dismissed the sacristan, communicants gathered in protest against the dismissal, and when the police attempted to eject them from the church a general fight ensued.

The Department of the Interior has received complaints that the municipal committees who were placed in charge of Catholic churches when the priest withdrew have been closing churches in some sections of the Republic. Secretary of the Interior Ortega immediately notified the authorities throughout the nation that all places of worship must remain open and that the closing orders only apply to courts of inquiry.

Mexico City, Aug. 20 (A.P.)—The union workmen of the Federal District are considering proclaiming a "general strike" as a counter-measure to the economic boycott of the Catholics. Workmen, if the strike is called, may refuse to pay house rent to landlords who are members of or support the League for the Defense of Religious Liberty's tenets.

Anthony Morelli, nineteen, of Moore street, Somerville, bobbed his wife's tresses. The bobbing didn't stop until she was as bald as a baseball.

Mrs. Morelli says since they have been married she has been forced to live at her father's home at No. 194 Maverick street, East Boston. Tuesday Anthony called and suggested a walk. When they reached the Porter street dump, Mrs. Morelli says, he forced her to sign a confession and then drew a pair of scissors with which he snipped off her hair.

sey, in the hands of Police Lieutenant W. T. McCullough of Jersey City, who left last night for New Brunswick with the automatic and a statement from Whitaker for investigators there.

Whitaker told police last night that "on or about October 10, 1922, at about 1 a. m., I was living at the Alton Hotel on South Thirteenth street, Philadelphia," the statement said. "I was reading and heard voices in the room adjoining mine. There was a woman in the party who was crying and rather hysterical. I heard a man say: 'I want you to cut out this nonsense. If you don't, I'll use this, and fix you the same as I did the others.'

"The woman then said, 'I can't understand why they don't send R.' to which the man replied: 'Don't worry about that; you'll get it tomorrow.'

"I came to the conclusion they were talking about a gun. Then they talked about going out to get something to eat. A woman said: 'I won't go unless you leave that gun here.'"

Whitaker said he stepped into the hall when the party started to leave and that he saw two men and two women. All were less than thirty years old, he believed. After they had gone he obtained a key to their room, entered and found the revolver in a drawer. He also found a New Brunswick newspaper. He took the revolver and newspaper. A short time later the man and woman returned.

"I am sure they were the same persons," he said, "for one of the men exclaimed: 'The gun is gone! The party left the hotel at once."

Whitaker said the magazine of the pistol was empty.

Will Ask Bail for Hall Suspects Monday

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 20 (I.N.S.)—"Willie" Stevens and Henry de la Bruyere Carpender, who have been held to the grand jury on charges of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, were remanded to the County jail here today, while their attorneys planned to secure their freedom on bail.

The first official move by defense attorneys is to be made on Monday, when an application for bail will be made before Chief Justice William R. Gummere in Newark.

No recommendation will be made to have Mrs. Hall committed to jail without bond, Simpson said. The decision of the chief justice after he has read all evidence will be satisfactory to the State.

The grand jury which will act on the murder charges will not convene until the third week in September. Action on the Hall-Mills case is not expected until after October 1.

VALENTINO WILL VISIT MAINE

his ordeal he is scanning messages from friends and film fans and taking great interest in discussing his case with the doctors.

"Came pretty close to it, didn't I?" he asked S. George Ullman, his manager, when the latter went to his bedside. "Closer than I want to come for the next ninety years!"

He was permitted to sit up in bed for a short time and the physicians announced a discontinuance of their bulletins, deeming them now unnecessary because of the improvement their patient has manifested since he passed the crisis.

VISITORS STILL BARRED.

Visitors were still barred from his room and among those turned away were Gloria Swanson and her husband, the Marquis de la Falaise, who have just returned from abroad. It was shortly after their visit that Valentino dictated a bulletin himself, crediting his improvement in large part to "the encouragement given me by everyone."

"I am sure these kind wishes have helped me greatly," said the star.

Flowers sent to Valentino are being given to poor patients in the hospital. A sheaf of American Beauty roses, telegraphed by Pola Negri, Valentino's reported fiancee, was given to Aurelia Villagran, a crippled girl, in one of the free wards.

Valentino is said to have displayed little interest in telephone messages from Miss Negri, who plans to rush to his side as soon as she finished a picture in which she is engaged in Hollywood.

Although he is permitted to smoke, he declined to do so. Ordinarily Valentino smokes forty cigarettes a day.

Maine Resort Heralds "Coming of the Sheik"

Poland Springs, Me., Aug. 20.—"The sheik is coming," were the words that passed from lips to lips in the corridors of the fashionable hotels at this beautiful inland resort today, and fair hearts went aflutter.

The news that Rudolph Valentino will pass his convalescent period at the Summer home of Hiram Abrams, film magnate, caused a tremendous sensation.

FOR HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

That health and strength will return to the screen idol during his stay here, was the opinion of all. Coupled with the invigorating air from the White Mountains, 70 miles away, is the famous medicinal spring water, bubbling from a fissure in the granite rocks.

Hyland Springs, across Lake Range from the home of Mr. Abrahs, is entertaining 1,200 guests at the three hotels—the Poland Springs House, Maine's largest hotel, the Mansion House, formerly the historic tavern, and the Elms Inn.

There are scores of smaller Summer boarding places scattered about Poland hill, on which stand the hotels.

Mr. Abrams came here a year ago and decided to make this his Summer home. He purchased a large estate near Summit Springs.

MAGNIFICENT HOME.

The great brown-stained shingled farmhouse has been transformed into a beautiful Summer home with a nine-hole golf course.

Views from the estate are magnificent, tree-clad hillsides rolling to the heights of the White Mountains in the far distance, and lakes and rivers dotting the whole landscape.

The nearest railroad station is Danville Junction, on the Maine Central, an hour's run from Portland, which is connected with New York by a daily through Pullman car train. From Danville Junction to the Abrams cottage is a nine-mile automobile run.

FIGHT TO SAVE GAINES FROM GALLOWS

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 20 (A.P.)—Wallace Cloyes Gaines, charged with slaying his daughter, Sylvia, faced the gallows today. He was convicted of first degree murder in Superior Court here last night and the jury fixed the penalty at death by hanging.

As the verdict was returned the prisoner collapsed, but quickly regained his composure, leaving the court room under guard with the assistance of a physician.

"It sure was a hot one," was his only comment regarding the jury's decision.

MOTIONS PRESENTED.

A fight to save their client's life was immediately launched by Gaines' attorneys. They presented motions for an arrest of judgment and for a new trial.

The conviction of Gaines brought to a close a trial that has attracted wide attention.

Sylvia, twenty-two years old, graduate of Smith College, Northampton, Mass., was killed the night of June 16. Her body was found the next morning on the shore of a lake about two miles from the Gaines' home. She came to Seattle last September from the home of her mother, Mrs. E. E. Maynard of Lynnfield, Mass., after a sixteen-year separation from her father. Gaines had been a resident of Seattle since he returned from the war suffering from ill effects of mustard gas.

The State contended that the girl was killed as the result of an attempt on her part to end an unnatural relationship with her father. The prosecution produced a number of witnesses who testified that they had seen a man of Gaines' general appearance near the place where the body was found.

ADMITTED QUARRELS.

Gaines denied absolutely that he killed his daughter. He admitted that he quarreled frequently with her, but declared that the quarrels were caused entirely by her objections to his heavy drinking. Mrs. Elizabeth Gaines, second wife of the defendant, also testified in behalf of her husband.

Edward Townsend, foreman of the jury, said that three ballots were taken before a final decision was reached. On the first two ballots the vote was 10 to 2 for conviction, with the two women jurors favoring acquittal. On the third ballot, the vote for conviction was unanimous.

attorney's office," said the commissioner, "Mr. O'Brien told me that he had received a letter stating that plants and flowers had been sent from the park department greenhouses to decorate the Innes Summer home.

"I told the district attorney, just as I am telling you, that no plant or flower had ever been given Mr. Innes with my knowledge or by my authority. A matter of fact, I didn't even know where his Summer place was. My relations with Mr. Innes have always been friendly, but he certainly never asked any plants or flowers and that as surely I never gave him any or empowered anybody to give him any."

PAVING CONTRACTS.

John J. Murphy, chief engineer of the park department, was called to the district attorney's office to talk about certain paving contracts.

The whole investigation, which goes to the Grand Jury in September, is considered by the district attorney, began with the charges brought by two contractors, John B. McGrath and H. F. King, who claimed they were discriminated against in the specifications for stone, though their bids were lowest.

The charge of "presents" to Innes in the form of flowers and plants caused even more of a furore at City Hall than had the actual charges of contract graft.

Speaking of Mr. O'Brien, Mr. Innes said: "Why, he was down to my house at Scituate two weeks ago. I treated him like a prince. I gave him to place charges in writing over my signature. If he charges me with the slightest impropriety, the slightest semblance of an overt act or a violation of the law I'll put him in court even if he is District Attorney of Suffolk County."

1 P. C. COMING TO CREDITORS

Arthur Black, referee in bankruptcy in the United States District Court, states that a first and final dividend will go to creditors of the defunct brokerage house of Burgess, Lang & Co. in about 10 days and he estimates that the dividend will be about 1 per cent. The firm failed in the Spring of 1922, with total liabilities of $367,195 and assets at that time designated as "uncertain."

SINGING JUNKMAN AND FAITHFUL OLD HORSE HE IS ACCUSED OF TREATING CRUELLY

NOW SINGS SONG OF WOE
Alome F. Deburyckere, Lawrence's "singing junkman," who is accused of beating a horse. He is shown with his mother, who is inspiration of his operatic ambitions.

WHEN IT'S RAG TIME!
Alome busy picking up a living. While cruising the Lawrence dumps he dreams of fame ahead. He is a war hero, and holds five citations for bravery.

HE NEVER HITS A RUSTY NOTE!
Here's Alome trying out his stuff in his own back yard. He has warbled before Metropolitan Opera House audiences and hopes to do so again. He composes his own music.

AIOME AND HIS TRUSTY HORSE
Aiome and the horse he is accused of beating. The operatic junkman takes hope and pride in the fact that Caruso once drove a cart himself. He is now awaiting sentence on the charge against him.

CHARGE HERO BEAT HORSE

Lawrence, Aug. 20.—Alome F. Deburyckmere, war hero, junk man, and opera singer, is awaiting sentence here after being found guilty of cruelty to the horse that drags his junk wagon. He didn't sing to the horse. He beat him.

This man of such strange and varied ways of life is something of a figure in Lawrence today, though he attracted little attention as junkman.

He was born, he told inquiring newspapermen, in Tourcoing, France, 37 years ago and studied music. He joined the army when he was fourteen years old, served in two African expeditions and three years in the World War, being wounded three times and cited for bravery five times.

After the war he came to this country, studied under Mme. Gagothy-Sheil at the Metropolitan Opera Company's studios and sang before audiences in the Metropolitan Opera House.

To prove his story, the junkman sang a few notes for the assembled cops and reporters and apologised for a few "blue" notes by explaining that he hadn't eaten for a couple of days.

SCULPTOR, 74, IN DEATH LEAP

Westbury, N. Y., Aug. 20 (A.P.)—A card bearing the words "Mrs. Whitney—you win; Tan-Tan toutest atteint fall is ended." was left behind by Gaitan Ardisson, aged sculptor, to explain why he leaped to his death from a water tower on the estate of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

Tan-Tan is the nickname of the seventy-four-year-old sculptor's son, Gaitan Ardisson, Jr., who found the card in his father's pocket after the body was picked up at the base of a 100-foot water tower.

Ardisson has been an assistant and adviser to Mrs. Whitney in her sculptural work for fourteen years. His son said he had been troubled with neuritis recently.

Mrs. Whitney is at Newport, R. I.

What was meant by the sculptor when he wrote the first part of the note—"Mrs. Whitney—you win"—could not be explained. The second part of the note, to his son, reading "Tan-tan toul est atteint," was interpreted by the son as his father's farewell before leaping to his death.

COOL WEATHER TO CONTINUE

Cool weather will continue tonight and tomorrow, the weatherman promised today.

Reports of frosts in the truck garden areas of Lexington were scouted by Forecaster George A. Loveland, in the absence of official records.

A tang of autumn was felt in Norton, on Cape Cod, where the mercury slumped down to 31. The general cool weather prevailing in New England brought Northfield, Vt., a temperature of 36.

The official forecast is: Fair tonight; Saturday, increasing cloudiness; not much change in temperature; fresh northeast and east winds.

Borglum to Carve Huge Figures of 4 Presidents

Rapid City, N. D., Aug. 20 (A.P.)—In the solid rock face of Rushmore Mountain, in the Black Hills, Gutson Borglum, noted sculptor, will begin next week to chisel out South Dakota's tribute to four outstanding Americans, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt.

Mr. Borglum was here today, going over photographs with United States Senator Peter Norbeck and those in charge of the project.

Rushmore Mountain is 1,000 feet high and the figures of the four Presidents sculptured will occupy a space 450 feet wide. The face of each figure will be 38 feet high.

WOMAN TO FACE COURT IN BLOW ON JAW CASE

Mrs. L. W. Webb, wife of Major L. W. Webb, Jr., of the United States Army, must face Roxbury court one week from today on the charge of crossing a mean right to the jaw of Frank Grazino, storekeeper of Brighton, as the climax to a traffic argument on Commonwealth avenue.

According to Grazino's story his engine became stalled in traffic and he got out to start it. The driver of a large limousine shouted to him to "go ahead, you're blocking traffic."

Then the woman, Mrs. Webb, began tooting her horn, and again sailed to him to get out of her way.

The next he knew, he said, Mrs. Webb alighter from her car, came up to him and hit him in the face. He was compelled, he said, to lock himself in his own car to escape her, and even then, he told the court, she tried to get at him once more.

Today, in Roxbury court, Grazino brought his complaint against the attractive woman, and, after hearing Mrs. Webb's story, and that of several witnesses, Judge Hayden issued the complaint charging her with assault and battery.

Mrs. Webb said that Grazino was at fault in the traffic argument and that she left her own car to go to his and remonstrate with him.

Grazino said, and he was supported by a dozen witnesses, that the woman left her car in a rage, ran to his car and sent aforesaid mean right to his jaw.

Major Webb was in the car with his wife, and told Judge Hayden that he saw his wife leave the car and walk toward Grazino's car, but he did not see the finale.

Traffic Officer Deloid also saw Mrs. Webb leave her car to go to Grazino's, but too many cars between himself and the argument prevented his seeing the punch, if punch there was.

Ex-Kaiser Is Sued; Healer Wants His Pay

Dresden, Aug. 20 (I.N.S.).—Suits have been filed here gainst the ex-Kaiser and his wife, Princes Hermine, by Katherine Mueller, a woman healer. The plaintiff seeks the costs of a four-months' cure on Princes Ferdinand, son of Princess Hermine, who she says suffered from a linguistic defect.

The costs have been disptad.

BROCKTON YOUTH GIVEN YEAR FOR AUTO LARCENY

Brockton, Aug. 20.—Joseph Sakalauckus, 18, of No. 23 Intervale street, Montello, pleaded guilty in the District Court to a charge of larceny of an auto from Mrs. Ruth C. Dyar of Cromwell, Ct., and was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction.

SAVES HIS DAD IN AUTO CASE

A "fresh guy" in Mattapan last April 1 pinned a tag on an innocent pedestrian. The tag bore the legend, "Ick Me," and the "fresh guy" received an application of the razor strop to the part it would do the most good. So five-year-old "Archie" White was convinced it is wrong to put tags on things.

His father, Dr. Arthur J. White, head of the Boston sanatorium in Mattapan, was called to City Hall and drove into town in his car. Little "Archie" was to meet him at the Hall, accompanied by a friend, and drive home.

Just as "Archie" and his guardian reached the hall, the little fellow saw Policeman Otto L. Breman place a tage on dad's car, which had been parked too long.

"Archie" knew this was all wrong and to save the cop from a licking he ran up to the car, took off the tag, and gravely handed it back to the dumfounded Breman.

The latter, however, saw the joke and let "Archie" get away with it. Now there's a few hundred harried autoists who are seeking "Archie's" services as "fixer."

There is a used car for every need listed in the Classified ads on the next-to-the-last pages.

SLAYER OF PAL WANTED TO DIE

"I must be guilty," muttered Charles Slyvert, twenty-two, today when held for the Grand Jury in Concord District Court on a charge of slaying his chum, Arthur Jeffries, at Maynard.

Slyvert shot and killed Jeffries at the gate of the Assabet Mills in Maynard, where the latter is employed. More than 1,000 workers witnessed the fatal shooting, which occurred during the noon hour.

When the charge was read to Slyvert today in court before Judge Prescott Keyes, Slyvert hung his head and muttered, "I must be guilty," according to the police. He was taken to Cambridge Jail to await the action of the Grand Jury, which sits in September.

Slyvert spent the night in the Maynard police station, where he was visited by his mother, Mrs. Henry Slyvert, who was also present during the arraignment today. During the night, police said, he wrote rambling notes. Mrs. Slyvert the night before the murder believed she took her son to a doctor because he was acting strangely and had threatened suicide. She took poison away from him, she said.

BANDS PLAY AS 'WONDER COW' GOES TO FAIR

Camden, Me., Aug. 20 (I.N.S.).—Calmly chewing her cud, with the blare of bands and the eloquence of orators still ringing in her ears, and, probably, wondering what it was all about, "Brownie," the "wonder cow" of Maine, started on a ten-thousand-mile journey today.

Admirers from twenty miles around came to give "Brownie" a send-off, planned and executed by the chamber of commerce.

"Brownie," who produces 19,666 quarts (a world's record for a grade Ayshire), will follow this itinerary:

Ohio State Fair, Indiana State Fair, Sesquicentennial Exposition, Eastern States Exposition, Massachusetts; Waterloo (Iawo) Fair, National Dairy Show, Detroit, and Pacific International Exposition, Oregon.

MORE DRUNKS ARE TAKEN IN BY HUB POLICE

An increase in drunkenness and a general falling off in other offenses and crimes are revealed by the police figures for the first eight months of the year as compared with the same period last year.

During the first eight months of this year there were 32,451 arrests for all crimes as compared to 33,471 last year. Arrests for drunkenness during that period this year total 26,386 as against 24,130 last year.

INVESTIGATE 3 DEATHS

clared that some of the stories were conflicting.

Neighbors of the place are said to have told the police they saw Gelos lying unconscious on the floor of the farmhouse kitchen last Thursday, and as far as the authorities can learn no one saw him alive after that day.

Questioned about the piece of meat on which he is said to have choked, Mrs. Carmansaucka is quoted by Inspector McCarthy as saying that she threw it in a kitchen receptacle and that the undertaker took it away. O. Floyd Nolf, the undertaker, denied having seen the meat.

The woman's status at the farm is also under scrutiny, Skirka having denied that she is his wife, while she insists that she is, according to the investigators. Skirka declared that her husband was killed in the collapse of a building in New Britain a year ago but she is said to have declared she married Skirka two years ago.

TWO CHILDREN THERE.

The presence at the farmhouse of two children, John and Nellie Denikitus, is also being investigated. They are said to have come from Wareburg about three months ago. Skirka, who was fined $200 for manufacturing liquor last April, told the police he owned the farm and that he and Mrs. Carmansaucka had $1,40 00)o60o0610y000000000501?vl.1 $1,400 jointly invested in farm land. McCarthy says he was informed by the woman that she owned the place.

Reporters and photographers who drove to the farm today were chased away by three dogs that were set upon them by somebody in the house, and orders were shouted to a farm hand from a window to get a gun.

Inspector McCarthy said he intended to make a joint inquiry into the three deaths, those of Gelos, Wilson and the infant, but for the present he was chiefly concerned with the first two.

Th cautopsy on the exhumed body og Gelos was performed in Worcester by Associate Medical Examiner Ernest L. Hunt of Worcester and Dr. E. J. McCrea of Southbridge.

INSURANCE QUESTION.

It was expected that the organs would be shipped to Harvard Medical School or some other place for analysis before a definite report was made.

"We are trying to find out if Gelos had personal property in addition to the insurance policies," said Detective McCarthy. "We have learned about all there is to know about the two policies.

"So far we are unable to say definitely that Wilson was insured. We have been told he was not.

"Wilson died in extreme pain at the City Hospital in Worcester, according to the doctors, but that was expected because of the supposed nature of his illness. There was no thought at that time of poisoning."

He is not the first to learn that "little Buffalo vaudeville girls" often contribute to man's education and reformation.

TWO HEAVYWEIGHTS that can make $1,000,000 in one fight find it difficult to find a spot to pitch their ring. Now they hope to fight and get their $1,000,000 in Philadelphia.

THE MAYOR "welcomes the bout," and Governor Pinchot, representing the State, is said to approve it also.

THE SESQUI-CENTENNIAL stadium will seat 125,000, and $2,000,000 gate receipts are expected.

All of this would interest gentlemen that gathered in Philadelphia in 1776.

IN ADDITION, Dempsey proves that he isn't afraid to fight a black man. Willis, after he finishes with the white Tunney. He offers to fight Willis and bet $100,000 on himself.

Those that are interested in the ability of a powerful white man to beat a powerful colored man are doubtless much elated.

SECRETARY KELLOGG is said to suggest further reduction in the world's floating navies.

Fortunately what nations do with obsolete floating battleship fortresses is not important. The thing that counts is what they do about flying fleets.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE and others responsible should see a photograph recently published of the Prince Regent of Japan and his wife intently watching the review of a flying school in Japan.

The Japanese know what is important. We don't.

NEW YORK, New Jersey, and other Eastern parts are interested in the Hall murder case. Somebody murdered a clergyman and a woman in his choir. Somebody cut that woman's throat with shears, after she was dead. Relatives of the clergyman's widow, a rich woman, are held for murder.

THE SOLEMN New York Times prints sixteen columns about this murder in one edition and explains editorially that it is "the mystery" that causes such extensive publicity. That is like the man that went to the circus for the sake of his little boy. It is CIRCULATION that really decides how many pages you give to a murder case in one day.

If you have a good news editor, why apologize for him?

WALL STREET was resting yesterday, as you have seen a caged lion, heavy with raw meat, resting and digesting.

That General Motors stock dividend, on which recipients pay no income tax, amounts at present market quotations to something over $40,000,000 in cash, a very nice melon. There are others ripening in the Wall Street melon patch.

LONDON TAILORS and hatters decide that men must "get away from dull gray and dark blue" and wear brighter colors. Some colors suggested will appeal to young gentlemen of "exquisite taste," madonna blue, plum blue, cedarwood and buff. Even lilac will be tried. The Prince of Wales is expected to help, although his tastes are simple.

HUB LOSES ON WOOL RATES

Washington, Aug. 20 (A.P.)—An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner today recommended dismissal of a complaint by the Boston Wool Trade Association against carload wool rates from Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri to Boston.

LONDON BACKS KELLOGG PLAN

London, Aug. 20 (A.P.)—The address of Frank B. Kellogg, American Secretary of State, at Plattsburg, in which he discussed the Geneva conference for the limitation of armaments and denied the United States contemplated withdrawing from the Geneva discussions, is commented on approvingly by London morning newspapers today.

The contention of Kellogg that it is better to begin regional armament agreements than to await formulation of some universally applicable scheme of disarmament is generally endorsed. The Times states that "the views from Mr. Kellogg's signally well-balanced mind" form a valuable contribution to the disarmament problem, especially as he spoke as "the representative of the nation which first brought about by mutual agreement curtailing of armaments among several wholly independent and distant countries."

The Daily Chronicle says the speech throws a useful limelight on the proceedings of the preparatory commission, and the Westminster Gazette feels "a refreshing breeze of hopefulness" blowing through the speech. It also finds it encouraging to learn that Mr. Kellogg "reckoned those Americans who belittle Geneva and all its work."

TRIES TO TRACE ORIGIN OF INDIANS TO ASIA

Nome, Alaska, Aug. 20.—Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, anthropologist of the Smithsonian Institution, is taking to Washington, D. C., important data obtained in Alaska in an effort to determine whether North American Indians originated in Asia, he revealed here today. He said efforts to find traces of ancient dwellings and implements of war and peace had often been fruitless because storms of past years had deeply buried the objects he sought or washed them to sea.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Governor and Mrs. Fuller Attend Stillington Players Premiere

STILLINGTON IS THE North Shore's newest rendezvous. Stillington, at Gloucester, where Leslie Buswell has just built a wondrous home for the Stillington players and where they are now presenting nightly a sparkling comedy before the smartest of audiences.

OFFICIALDOM and society gathered for the premiere. The Governor and Mrs. Fuller and their party came in with that handsome Washingtonian who hales from Gloucester, Mr. A. Platt Andrew. Mrs. Fuller, effectively arrayed in white metal cloth, flung about her shoulders a brightly tinted shawl.

THE WILLIAM GORDON MEANS, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, the E. Preble Motleys, Miss Grace Monks and her mother, Mrs. Richard Monks, Mrs. Francis H. Appleton, Jr., the Charles Boydens, and Miss Gabriella Ladd were but a few of the charming audience.

THAT CHARMING SOCIETY recruit to the stage, Miss Helena Adamowski, was an usher, having relinquished the feminine lead in the Stillington players' first production. She was a pretty figure in palest green chiffon.

MRS. JOHN T. J. CLUNIE was in the usher squad, a squad whose hard duty it was to find places for all who flocked to Stillington. Miss Vernon Ladd was another of the younger set who ushered.

THEATRICALLY, everyone agrees that the Grace George comedy was the happiest of choices for a first production. Certainly the charming Mrs. Lynde Cochrane was the happiest of choices for feminine lead.

AS USUAL, she delighted the eye in a series of lovely gowns. For the first act a tea-rose taffeta, and for the second a garden frock of crisp muslin were exceedingly trig and becoming to the charming leading lady.

IN THE BACKGROUND, but most effective, Mrs. Hendricks Hallet Whitman was the quiet moving maid, Louise, who flitted in and out of the domestic picture with perfect stage technique.

AND, AS FOR Miss Dorothy Ross, her success was as great as her frocks were becoming. Miss Ross is a charming North Shore summer resident, well-known on amateur stages.

WELL MAY MR. BUSWELL be delighted with the success of his venture into the world of the little theatre.

STILLINGTON HALL is ideal for such a purpose. Built in the old English manner, it forms a wing of Mr. Buswell's handsome Gloucester home. Wrought iron lamps, and enormous beams, early American paintings and early English fireplaces are details of a setting, such as few dramatic associations may boast.

TO BRING BACK a revived little theatre to the North Shore and to give it the finest amateur dramatics that thought, time and ingenuity can accomplish is the Buswell plan, which at the moment seems well on its way to success.

Pauline Starke For 'Frisco Sal'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20.—Edmund Goulding again has an original idea. This time it is "Frisco Sal," a tale laid in San Francisco on the Barbary Coast, often called the Apache district of America. It seems to me that Edmund Goulding would win a medal in any idea contest.

Christy Cabanne has been engaged by Louis B. Mayer to direct "Frisco Sal," which will go into production immediately.

Pauline Starke draws the leading feminine role and Owen Moore will play opposite her.

This, I forgot to say, will be a Hunt Stromberg production made under the supervision of this youthful producer.

ERNST LUBITSCH IS TO MAKE a picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Just a moment, please, until I explain the whys and wherefores of this interesting arrangement.

Pauline Starke

Lubitsch left Warner Brothers studio yesterday for good and all, to report for duty at Famous Players-Lasky. B. P. Schulberg, it seems, has taken over his remaining contract with the Warners. Later, as I stated a few days ago, Lubitsch will make all of his productions for Paramount, but that is the future, I am now dealing with the present.

Before this director, who has succeeded in making a place for himself in American motion picture circles, starts with Famous he will make one production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Louis B. Mayer will give him the sort of material he knows best how to handle. Just now both Mayer and Irving Thalberg are searching for the type of story that will be a credit to both Lubitsch and M-G-M.

DRUSES FIRE ON U. S. TOURISTS

Constantinople, Aug. 20 (A.P.)—Newspapers print dispatches from Adana, telling of terrifying experiences of 200 American tourists in Damascus.

After visiting the ruins of Baalbeck under the protection of French armored cars and airplanes the tourists were escorted by soldiers to Damascus. During the night of August 14 Druse tribesmen cut the telegraph and electric light wires, threw the city into darkness and made a strong attack, to which the French replied with heavy gunfire.

Emerging from their hotels at daybreak the morning of the 15th the Americans sought a French military escort to the coast, declaring they did not wish to risk remaining in Damascus. Their route from the city was strewn with a hundred French and many Druse dead.

AMERICANS HURT IN PLANE CRASH BETTER

Folkestone, Eng., Aug. —Of the Americans injured in Wednesday's crash of a cross-channel passenger airplane, only the Rev. Stanley Hazzard of New York was still in a serious condition today. All the other Americans, including Mr. Hazzard's sister, Margaret, showed improvement today.

The British Air Ministry continued its investigation of the accident, which caused three deaths, including that of Robert Blaney of Boston.

The coroner decided Blaney's death was accidental. He declared the pilot of the plane was obviously worried about the weather, and was seeking a landing place when the crash occurred. Blaney's body was identified by his sister, Miss Margaret Blaney.

ROSE NAMED FOR DOROTHY DIX

New Orleans, Aug. 27 (A.P.)—Mrs. E. H. Gilmer, of New Orleans, nationally known as a newspaper columnist under the name of Dorothy Dix, was honored here today when a new variety of rose was christened "Dorothy Dix" at a banquet of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists.

The flower was christened by Major Patrick Francis O'Keefe of Boston, originator of the slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

"Flowers are words which even a babe may understand."

From these words in the poem by Bishop Coxe, P. F. O'Keefe, president of the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, years ago conceived the famous florist slogan—"Say It with Flowers."

At the Southern Yacht Club, Lake Ponchartrain, New Orleans, the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturalists presented Major O'Keefe with a gold medal as the man contributing most to the flower industry during the last five years.

Henry Penn, well-known Boston florist, urged O'Keefe to do the thinking that resulted in "Say It with Flowers."

FIVE LOSE LIVES AS WATER SWEEPS OHIO

Columbus, O., Aug. 20 (A.P.)—With the death toll due to flood conditions in Ohio standing at five and with thousands of acres of the State's finest corn land and a number of highways under water, showers were forecast for today. Although a number of streams were reported receding last night, additional rainfall today was expected to send them to new high levels, perhaps over their banks once more to inundate farms and small villages in the bottoms.

NAB 4 YOUTHS AT GUN POINT

Four Quincy youths, all under sixteen, were taken at gunpoint today by Sergt. Nixon and Patrolman Mullen of the Lagrange street station, when they were apparently trying to force an entrance into the building at No. 12 Bedford street.

The four were grilled at the station house to see whether or not they were connected with the break in the Bedell store at No. 496 Washington street during the night, when valuable furs were taken.

The quartet were in the doorway and ran to an automobile when police appeared. One was captured before he could board the car and the other three were taken after a short chase along Chauncy street to Rowe place.

In the doorway the police found a glass cutter and the window in the door was scratched.

Entrance had been made into the Bedell store by breaking the glass in the front door.

KINGSTON IS CELEBRATING

Kingston, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—This quaint old town was celebrating today the 200th anniversary of its founding. A program, that included a parade, in which Army and Marine Corps participated, was to be reviewed by Governor Alvan T. Fuller and other State officials, including Senator William M. Butler.

An historical pageant, at the historic old Bradford house, built by a grandson of Governor Bradford, in 1674, and the scene of Indian attacks during King Philip's war, was planned to depict some the stirring episodes of colonial days.

The observation will be continuing tomorrow.

SEN. FERNALD BIG CANNER OF CORN

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

U. S. Senator Bert M. Fernald of West Poland, Me., is one of those who have been able to combine successfully big business and politics. The writer had the pleasure of meeting him when the name of Fernald was much lower in the political scale than it is today, but the big Androscoggin County Republican had already won a name for himself in baseball and boxing. He had no small friends at that time and so many must have been added since that I can well imagine the joy caused by the announcement that he is convalescing after his recent severe illness.

Senator Fernald.

The Pine Tree Senator is really a self made man. With $1,000, borrowed from an aunt, he started canning corn. His travels from Maine to California selling his product. The eight Fernald factories a few years ago were turning out half a million cans of corn a day.

* * *

Comparatively few people are aware that the claim has been made that the first canned goods in the World were "put up" in Boston. The original canner probably never foresaw anything like the business has grown to be

COLLEGE LIFE IN SERIAL

It won't be long now. You can wait for the football season if you want the thrill and excitement of the games, and the gayety and glamor of the after-game parties. But why wait?

In "The Woman Game," Katherine Brush's sparkling novel which starts next Monday in the Boston Evening American, you'll find both of these so vividly depicted that they'll be real.

It's a story of college life. A real story. Startlingly so. If you pick it up, you won't stop reading until the last word is reached.

There's a live, honest-to-goodness, red-blooded American boy for the hero. And there are peppy, pretty American girls. A lot of them.

Of course they are different. But that's what makes it interesting, not only for the hero, Jock Hamill, but for you as well.

Just keep it in mind—"The Woman Game."

First instalment in the Boston Evening American next Monday.

'TIS FOUR-LEG MUSSOLINI

Mussolini is appearing before the disabled vets at United States Veterans' Hospital, No. 44, at West Roxbury, next Wednesday night.

At least that's the rumor going from bed to bed at the government institution. Some of the men even considered the matter gravely and wondred how the Italian dictator had slipped into the country incognito. A few of the doctors were asked and the truth eventually leaked out.

Some wag set the tale afloat. Mussolini, it became known, is a horse. A work horse, at that! He is George Ishan's means of locomotion in "The Loves of Ricardo," the famous stage and screen star's latest production, the film of which is being shown to the wounded boys next Wednesday night, the third of a series of entertainments which have been arranged by the Boston Evening American and the Metropolitan Theatre.

13,000 MINERS END WAR IN BRITAIN

London, Aug. 20 (A.P.)—The biggest breakaway of coal miners from the policy of the Miners' Federation which has occurred since the strike in the mines was called, more than three months ago, came today when delegates representing about 12,000 men and boys employed by the Bolsover company in the Nottinghamshire coal fields accepted a proposal of the mine owners to resume work at their old wages for a seven and a half hour day.

This constituted a compromise between the federation's insistency that the seven-hour day must be maintained and the mine owners' demand for an eight-hour day.

Although it is yet to be seen whether the miners generally indorse the action of the delegates, it is predicted that virtually all concerns will eagerly accept the compromise and that work will start again forthwith.

Other mine owners in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire have announced their readiness to reopen their pits on the same terms as have been given by the Bolsover company.

DOOMED, TELLS BABY HE'S GOING ON LONG TRIP

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 20 (I.N.S.)—Two men went to their death in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison today. They were David Demalo, 33, of New Rochelle, N. Y., father of six children, and William Hoyer of New York City.

Demalo was convicted of complicity in the Mt. Vernon carbarn murders. Hoyer killed his wife and daughter.

Demalo died protesting his innocence, while Hoyer said he deserved to die and wanted to get it over with.

A few minutes before his last word, Demalo kissed his four-year-old daughter good-bye, the prison rules being suspended in this instance.

"Daddy is going on a long journey," he told her.

Hoyer faced death with the greatest composure of any man executed at Sing Sing in the last six years, Warden Lawes said. As the hour of execution approached Hoyer, at his own request, was converted to the Catholic faith.

Demalo was convicted of the holdup and murder of Jacob Bohmacher, inspector, and Ragnar Nicol, motorman, on a trolley car near Mt. Vernon, last Fall. Five men, including Demalo and Frank Daly, who already has been executed, had plotted to steal the week-end receipts from the trolley crew.

The Taxi Dancer by Robert Terry Shannon

A Thrilling Story of Night Life and Night Clubs; a Mad Whirl of Adventure

Joslyn Poe, daughter of a proud, but impoverished Virginia family, wants a career, not marriage. The wild blood of a line of daring women runs in her veins. A seeress tells her of the "wildness." She goes to New York in seek of adventure.

Joslyn, hungry and discouraged, in a lodging house, is heard weeping by Kittie Lane, a manicurist. Kittie gets Lee Rogers, a friend, to invite them to dinner.

While the girls are at the table with Rogers, James Kelvin, movie star, attempts to cultivate Joslyn's acquaintance. There is a near row with Rogers. Kelvin goes away leaving with Joslyn a sense of some strange influence over her. A few days afterward Kittie is brought home blind from bad booze. Joslyn rushes to Stein's Academy to take a job as a "Taxi Dancer" to care for Kittie. In the academy she meets Stephen Bates, a man-about-town, who offers to go to Kittie's help.

Kittie's life and sight are saved by the doctors secured by Bates. They both go to a party at Bates'. Kelvin is there. He kills Bates in a quarrel.

Kittie saves Joslyn by telling the police that the death row was over her.

With Kelvin hiding in her apartment Joslyn is called by the district attorney. She bests him. Police watch her flat.

Great luck comes to Joslyn. She is offered $250 per week as a dancer. Brierhalter asks her not to accept and offers her $500.

She borrows $5,000 from Lee Rogers to dress her dance Brierhalter sees her home one night, forces his way into the flat and faces Kelvin. Joslyn stops a row by drinking something and crying, "Poison."

DEMPSEY UNABLE TO PASS 3-YEAR LIMIT---TUNNEY

GENE SAYS CHAMP DUE FOR FALL

Challenger Points to History of Other Crown Bearers' Loss of Honors

By GENE TUNNEY

(This is the fourth of a series of articles written by Gene Tunney exclusively for the Boston Evening American. The next will appear next Tuesday.)

No champion ever was away from the ring for three full years and then made a successful comeback. Sulli van couldn't do it; Corbett couldn't.

Fitz couldn't make the grade after less than two years of loafing. Jeffries, Johnson and Willard failed. And Jack Dempsey isn't going to be any exception.

I'll prove it to him on September 23.

A man who has not fought for a long, long time loses much that is vital for athletic greatness and re tains only a portion of his crown. Some one man lose mercy muscular power; others lose speed.

Some are robbed of co-ordination of eye, mind and muscle during years of idleness, and that kills off their marksmanship.

Dempsey claims he has lost none of these. He may be right — he may be wrong. But granted that he's the same speedy performer of 1923 that he can drive home his blows with the same power and that he's as clever as he was in his fighting days.

He's still minus something. . . . And that is the entirely necessary thing; that is SELF-CONFIDENCE.

Gene Tunney

CHAMPION WORRIED.

The champion may look others into believing that he thinks that he's as great as he ever was. But he can't kid himself about it. He talks much about "I'm as good as ever," but he doesn't say that to himself.

He's worrying, fearful, wondering. And also that happens to a champion it's a tipoff that his morale is crumbling.

Dempsey cannot forget what the historians show. And that is that champions of the past who laid off as long as he did never came back.

Sullivan was primed for a great battle with Corbett—but he couldn't make the grade.

Corbett was in his prime when he fought Fitz, yet Jim had been away from the ropes for three years and this gave the latter, who had the most amazing defense of any fighter in the game, relief to duck just once—and Fitz nailed him.

It's the same story with the others. They tried to come back—but they couldn't. They may have looked great—and the experts may have insisted that they were "as good as ever," but when it came to a test, they failed; they went to pieces just because the layoff had affected them, and robbed them as kings of their realms.

APPEARANCE FOOLS.

Dempsey LOOKS great. I'll admit it. He shows up well in a gymnasium. He'll tell you he's in fine fettle right now. But if you think that Dempsey thinks along exactly those lines, just think back over his various expressions about himself. He's always cheering for himself. He's always telling everybody that he's in greater form than he ever was.

The champion, in his prime, never claimed credit for being a distance being—not being patient. He's all zip and tear, throwing himself into the fight in the first round and risking exhaustion if he fails to drop his man.

That used to happen when he was at his best, when everything was working with machine like precision.

Dempsey may look great; he may look like the old Dempsey. But when he climbs into the ring watch him fight himself out before I really begin to operate on him.

And when he's shot his bolt, and when the inner fear that he now has that he may not be able to come back becomes a grim reality—well, that's when I'll begin to chop down whatever resistance he has left, and, in the end, put an "X" before his name.

Kearns Tells How Carp Almost Beat Champ in Jersey Bout

This is the thirty-fifth chapter of Jack Kearns' thrilling story in which he replies to the charges of Jack Dempsey. It is the first time that the man who put Jack Dempsey on the pugilistic map tells of his experiences when he was a prize fighter. Read this story every day in the Boston Evening American.

By JACK KEARNS
CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

It was a very hostile crowd that greeted us that day in the bowl at Boyle's Thirty Acres and Joe Humphreys didn't help matters when he got up and introduced Carpentier as the "Soldier of France."

Jack went in there to flatten Georges as quickly as possible. He came close to doing it in the first round but Georges was slippery and Jack couldn't catch him squarely.

In that second round Jack was taking all kinds of chances trying to get Carpentier to open up. Don't let anybody try to tell you that Dempsey wasn't stung in that second round.

If the punch had been lower down and on Jack's chin, Dempsey would have gone down. A second after that right landed high, he shot another and another. Dempsey smothered the last two. He got the last two on the neck as he rolled his head.

Dempsey steadied himself and he hooked Carpentier with a left to the body that took all the fight out of the Frenchman. As Dempsey sat down in his corner for the rest after the second round I shook him up and said, "How do you feel, Jack? That fellow nailed you with a pig."

"No I feel fine. I didn't even feel the punch."

But I knew that he had felt it plenty. Any punch that will stagger Dempsey will be felt. He was so sure and anxious to break Carpentier in two that he thought he didn't feel it.

I sent Jack out to crowd him in the third and we missed knocking him out a couple of times by the fraction of an inch. We knew we'd get him in the fourth. He finally put Georges down with a left hook to the belly and a right that seemed to land more on the neck than on the jaw.

DEMPSEY TRIED HARDEST.

There didn't seem to be an opponent worth while after that. Floyd Johnson was making good around New York and big Firpo was doing his best to fight his way to recognition around the small New Jersey clubs. Dempsey was getting anxious as he realized that he was laying off too much.

I looked up Jess Willard and talked over a comeback for him. He still was in good condition and he thought he would try a comeback. I advised him to fight himself back into favor. He thought it a pretty good idea.

Bill Farnsworth was running a Milk Fund show for Mrs. Hearst and Willard was offered a fight with Floyd Johnson. It was a tremendous success that show and old Jess came out on top with a knockout.

Firpo knocked out Jack McAuliffe in three rounds on the same card, so that they loomed up as the natural attraction and Rickard put it on in the Jersey City bowl. Firpo won and he stood out as the challenger.

It ended old Willard as a comeback star. If Rickard had hoped to bring Jess and Jack together again that bout ended it right there.

Wills came along and posted a forfeit with the New York Commission challenging Dempsey and William Muldoon, then the chairman of the commission, called me to his office and said that I would have to accept the challenge in six months' time or the title would be vacated in Wills.

I always wanted the match, as I thought this would be a good opportunity to accept and articles were drawn up, the Lant to be left open to bids and to go to the promoter making the best offer.

GIBBONS NEXT BALLYHOO.

Ten days after I was ordered to fight, I was told by the commission that the fight could never take place. All the promoters were scared out by that ruling and I started working on a Dempsey and Gibbons bout. Muldoon said that Dempsey was too big and Gibbons too small.

I went West and plunged into the hotel business in Los Angeles. We interested ourselves in the Great Western Coal Company of Utah and built a railroad seventeen miles long to help the enterprise. While Dempsey and I were in Salt Lake City we got a telegram from Harry Pollok asking me to come on to Chicago to close for a match that looked good to him.

I left Salt Lake that night and when at Greenwich, Wisconsin, there was a telegram for me telling me that Mike Collins and a fellow named Mcauliffy had flown from Great Falls, Montana, and had just missed me at Salt Lake. They had come with plans for Gibbons and Dempsey to fight at Shelby, Montana.

Marine Shatters Shooting Record

A. B. French, sergeant in the United States Marine corps, is the new world champion. He set a world's record in the 50-meter at Wakefield with a perfect score in the 200-yard and 300-yard rapid fire shooting contest. It is the fifth day of the Inter-Service of New England.

French made two perfect scores of 50 at each of the distances. This breaks the record of one of his comrades, Private Pinson, made at Camp Perry when the latter took the honors by making a 99 out of a possible 100.

A brother sergeant in the "Devil Dog" outfit, L. Jackson, also four perfect scores of above more than the shoot called for at 200 yards rapid fire and equaled a new record. He finished off on the 300-yard range by hitting 45 bull eyes.

Babe Ruth Goes to the Front in Race for Popularity

According to the system of counting the votes in the Hearst Popularity Contest, which gives three points for a first place vote, two points for a second, and one point for a third, Babe Ruth is now at the head of the nationwide standing, having amassed a total of 9,965 points.

The home run specialist is followed by Helen Wills, with 9,476, and Helen, be it said, continues to hold sway over the New England balloters with 820 votes, having gained considerably over the Babe in the last two days.

Gertrude Ederle springs into prominence by taking third place in the national count, totaling 7,935 points. She is followed by Red Grange, Dick Howell, Jack Dempsey, Bobby Jones, Tony Hadjich and Ty Cobb in that order.

Babe Ruth is second in New England with 779 votes, having fallen somewhat behind Helen. Bobby Jones and Glenna Collett, the stars of golfdom, are next with 333 and 240 respectively. Then come Jack Dempsey, Gertrude Ederle and Charlie Paddock.

Many fans are not sending in 50 word letters with their ballots. By so doing you can make yourself eligible for the prizes which are to be awarded the voters in addition to the prizes which will come to the winners.

One ballot apiece three names — your first, second and third choices: American athletes in active competition, and there you have the sum total of the regulations. Send your votes to the Popularity Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

Inside Golf

One or two details should be watched by the player who makes his swing with an effort to take advantage of the points I have discussed this week. First, he should be rather solidly planted on his right heel — that is, right leg firm — during the back swing. Firm does not mean rigid and stiff. In the forward swing the left leg should be firmed up as the weight comes over onto it. Brace it so you can hit against it. Another point is do not let the right side of the body move away out to the right in the back swing, because if it does the left side will drop down. To get at the right proportion in correct body action try the drag back swing first by trying to keep both your feet planted squarely on the ground. Then you will discover just how much body action is required, because, by letting the left foot up a little, the body will take just what action it wants—by instinct. And, above all, take your time with the club. This applies to both halves of the swing. You will not be likely to take too much time, so give yourself a chance.

BRACE THE LEFT LEG IN THE FORWARD SWING AND HIT AGAINST IT.

WILLS REVEALS HOW REFEREE BAITED HIM

This is the seventeenth of a series of articles written by Harry Wills exclusively for the Boston Evening American.

By HARRY WILLS
CHAPTER XVII.

All through the first round of our Buffalo fight I did nothing but jab with the left at long range and I had Tate dizzy from these pokes. During the intermission Nugent came over to my corner and in a loud tone of voice, so that all the ringsiders could hear, he demanded to know why I did not use my right hand more.

"I'll use it when I get good and ready," I told him. "I'm doing this fighting."

The reason I did not use my right was that Tate was watching that hand and nothing else. He had a perfect defense for it, but was wide open for a left, so it would have been foolish for me to waste a right hander by shooting at nothing but arms and gloves, when all the time he was wide open for the left.

Harry Wills

In the second round I let Tate land a few light blows in order to get him to open up. Then I cracked him on the chin with a left hook and he went down and out. I helped his seconds carry him to his corner, for he was dead to the world.

Had he fell off the stool before we could get him to stay up for the twenty minutes he was supposed to he could leave the ring.

Well, do you still think the fight was a fake?" I asked Nugent. He had nothing to say, but scowled at me with an I'll-get-you-yet expression on his face.

Not long after that I boxed Sam McVey over in Philadelphia. I had knocked him out twice in bouts at Olympia and had outpointed him a number of times. He was getting old and was no longer any match for me so he went in there with no other idea than to stick the eight rounds.

Sam was a big, strong fellow, and an artist at holding. He draped himself around my neck and hung on like a movie vamp. He wouldn't let go and I could do a thing under the rules, or I would have stopped his holding in a hurry.

Finally in the fourth I pulled away from him, McVey fell through the ropes. The referee stopped it then. He announced that he had disqualified McVey for holding.

Naturally the crowd was sore because it was such a bad fight and sore press agent to work and next day they changed the decision of the referee to no contest.

That made me sore in the blame, although it was no fault of mine that McVey would not fight. It also cost me my share of the purse, for they refused to pay it. Several newspapers were conducting a mild crusade for a Dempsey-Wills match at the time and it was a fair hurt me a great deal, which was the intention of those who had engineered the whole thing.

SEMI-FINALS AND FINALS AT WOODLAND TODAY

STIMPSON FAVORITE TO WI

Brae-Burn Faces Cox Semi-Finals; Norton-Cro in Other Match

Championship Flig
Joe Norton, Jr., Woodla vs. Joshua Crane, The Co try Club.
R. V. Cox, Tedesco, vs. E Stimpson, Brae Burn.

By BILL GRIMES

With Edward S. Stimpson of Brae Burn the only favorite left in the field, the semi-finals and finals of the three-day Woodland Golf tournament will be played today.

The favorites fell by the wayside in great shape yesterday. Tom Week, who was the medalist of the year and went through to the finals failed to live through the first round. Joe Norton, Jr., defeating him 1 up. Then in the second round Emory Stratton and Joe Norton a second victim.

Bobby Cox came through in style in two hard matches. In the first round he was carried 21 holes by young Joe Lynch, the 19-year-old caddy from The Cud Club. The match was nip and tuck from start to finish, and Joe deserved great credit for the showing he made in his first open golf match.

GREAT FINISH.

In the afternoon it looked as though Cox was out for he was five down with only seven holes to play, then he was four down and one to play, but he staged one of the most sensational comebacks in golf, matching his opponent hole for hole and finishing in the home hole even with Lynch. Newton, who was runner-up to Frank C. Newton of The Country Club in the New England amateur championship at the Rhode Island Country Club showed the way to all in want of the cup, in the first round and put H. P. Hilton of Monmouth in the discards 3 and 2.

Joe Norton, the conqueror of Tommy Week and Lynch, is next to play Joshua Crane of The Country Club in the semi-finals. Crane won his way to this round by setting back Clarence Cochrane of Belmont 2 up, Jules and J. A. Hutchinson, 2 and 1.

OPPOSITE STYLES

The Norton-Crane affair will be a battle between two styles of hitting and a very interesting match is expected. Norton is hitting a par game now, but the season and the rest of the game is greatly improved over last season. Crane on a more distance than he is given credit for but he must hope to get out with his younger opponent if he will be a short game which will hold Crane in and Norton will have to be very good if not to make the mark. It looks for his opponent is any time experience.

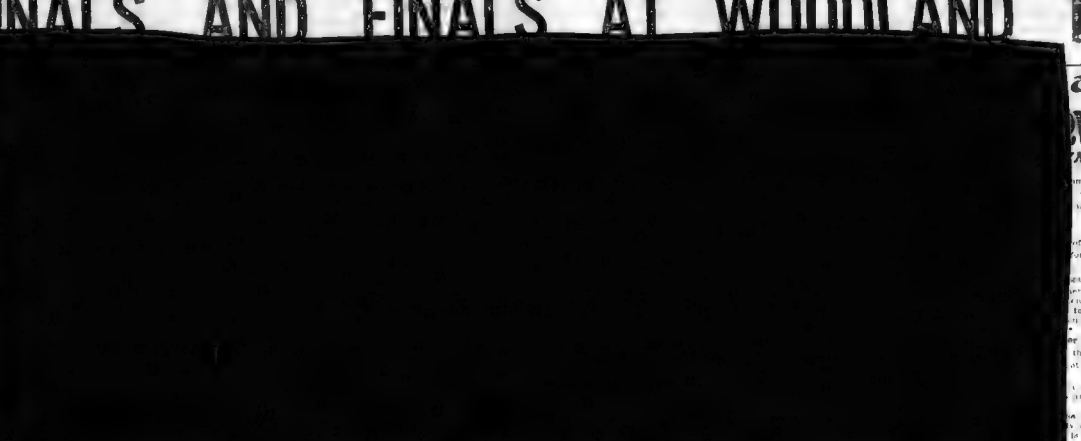
In the lower half of the draw, Eddie Stimpson is out with Bobby Cox. This will be a great match with the odds favoring the Brae Burn player. The other four better match ups in the section than Stimpson and the way he went through to the semi-finals in the New England and he reached Frank C. Newton stamped him as one of our best.

Crucial Matches at Forest Hills

New York, Aug. 20 (INS)—Six members of the first ten of team with two outside the upper circles, will begin to encounter each other this afternoon at Forest Hills in the crucial series of matches which will determine the successor of Miss Helen Wills as national champion.

The leading match of the day will bring Miss Elizabeth Ryan against Miss Eleanor Goss.

The other two ties are Mrs Molony vs Mrs Charlotte Hosmer Chapin; Miss Mary K. Browne vs. Miss Penelope Anderson. Miss Martha Harvard vs. Miss Margaret Blake of Boston



FLOWERS GIVES GREB LESSON IN BOXING

New York, Aug. 20 (A.P.)—Tiger Flowers Atlanta negro remains today undefeated middleweight champion of the world after a strenuous 15 round struggle with the man from whom he took the crown, Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh.

Flowers piled good left defense in Madison Square Garden before it became his old not receive the judges vote of the eighth Red Cross Round, and then fought a fine fifteen rounds to win the decision.

In far better condition than he was on the night he lost the champion ship last February in the same ring, Greb was credited by newspapermen with capturing six of the 15 rounds, while eight went to Flowers and one was even.

A slowing offensive which had the referee in trouble in the last two rounds probably drew the vote of the referee.

Flowers as usual, carried the attack to his opponent from the start, but it is time Greb countered with stiff blows to the head, and gave it more than the champion to the referee.

Both protested against what they described as unfair tactics and both went to the floor during the fight after wrestling about.

A wild defense earned Greb threats after he had accustomed himself, cuts being opened over both eyes. His best was a target for the champion at short spots and in the early rounds he appeared unable to protect his face.

The challenger's last minute rush, although it had the negro retreating, failed to produce a blow that did effective damage. It was the old "windmill" attack without the cutting drive it was wont to carry.

Flowers weighed 159¾ and Greb 159.

Jack Dempsey Scoffs at Wills Accepting His $150,000 Defy

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 20 (I.N.S.)—"Just language—nothing else but," declared Jack Dempsey today regarding the announcement by Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills, that the champion's conditional challenge to the negro challenger would be accepted.

"Mullins informed the world that, of course, he's going to accept my challenge on behalf of Wills," said Dempsey. "In the very next breath he announces that he is quite sure that I am bluffing and that perhaps the money I mentioned has not been posted at all. If Mullins thinks that all he needs do is to send one of his little boy scouts to Saratoga, hunt up Tom Shaw and he can see six certified checks, for $25,000 each

"Wills won't accept the challenge of mine—and I'll do a little betting on that," Dempsey declared. "For something like four years he's been doing a lot of bluffing."

FIVANTI TAKES ON THEROUX AT SALEM

North Shore fistic followers can journey to the North Street Hall in Salem, tonight, and watch the battling warriors of the ring perform when Lou Modes Salem A. A. Cpl. Jack Fivanti, the sailor boy from Gloucester, is pitted to go the limit in the feature bout with the battling Frenchman, Wally Theroux of Nashua, N. H.

What matches up to be equally as good as the main attraction is a contest between "Sunbeam" John Gray of Revere and Walter Cook of Fall River.

There is to be another eight rounder to add to the other two which will find Freddie Moore of the South End swapping leather with Harry Roberts.

Another Revere chap, Tommy Lannon, is to open the show with Mickey Sivera of Charlestown and Jakie King of Glouster will mingle in another six round preliminary.

While the North Shore folks are kept busy the fans from the South Shore have two places to select for their night's sport. Hoffman is staging a pro show with Al Freeman of Holbrook pitted against Joe Monte. The latter recently got a close decision on Freeman in the Roslindale hall. Jones is to turn the tables. Two other leagues the same card will be Al Morse in a set-to with Lovers and Jimmy Connolly taking on Smoke Ellis.

Crate Boss of Brown Panther Declares $15,000 Wager Story Is Bunk

"JACK DEMPSEY is not only the world's heavyweight boxing champion but also the greatest bluffer of all time. He may be fooling the public but he isn't putting anything over on Paddy Mullins."

It was Paddy Mullins speaking over the long distance phone from his home in Brooklyn to the writer today. The taciturn manager of Harry Wills was discussing the offer Dempsey is said to have made to [illegible] to fight the Brown Panther for $150,000.

"I offered to fight him [illegible] slightest doubt he could win. But I am not afraid of him. But Wills is another matter. Harry is no sucker about the bet that he is threatening to hock his furniture to cover.

"If Dempsey really means that he will take Wills on after he fights Tunney he will find us ready. His $150,000 bet, if he has that much money to squander, will be covered any time he feels like putting it up.

"But all this talk about the $150,000 bet is ballyhoo. Dempsey has been advised by some of his fellows to make the crack. But he is not getting away with anything as far as I am concerned. I know his tricks.

"Harry is in great shape right now and we will arrive in Boston early Monday for the exhibition at the Boston Arena on Tuesday evening. Wills will show the people of Boston why Dempsey has been side-stepping him. Dempsey knows Jack Kearns knows and everyone else in the boxing game knows that Tunney is afraid to give Wills a chance."

SS. Peter and Paul Plan Grid Season

The Saints Peter and Paul football team of South Boston is forming plans for a busy season on the gridiron. The coach has issued a call for candidates for the initial practice session on September 1.

The organization hopes to have the same success with elevens as it has enjoyed from the year. The baseball nine finished 3rd [illegible] the league race and is the strongest ever. Write W. F. Sullivan, No 111 Broadway, S. Boston.

Fohls Go After Sixth Straight Win Today

By NICK FLATLEY

THE reborn Red Sox will climb out of the cellar if they don't watch out. There's an enormous gap between the Fohls and the Sixlets, but if the Boston entry keeps flying along, the bridge can be built. The Sox have now won five ball games in a row, and won 'em, what we mean. Their victories have been clean cut and deserved.

The team has won seven games out of ten played on this home stand while in good enough for anybody. The boys from the West, who expected to pick up some soft pops in their scramble for place and straw money, are beginning to figure Boston as a dangerous town. And that's surely a tribute to better days.

Eddie Collins, who is here with his White Sox, saw a lot of native ball playing in the first joint of the series and will consider his self mighty lucky to do any galloping on the Yanks and Indians all other clubs that he wants to catch.

Eddie's team is in rather a poor way for a drive to the finish. Manager Edward himself has a Quaker lockment in one of his venerable legs and cannot break into the line up. He's missed as much as any body could be through Ray Morehart is proving a mighty good sub.

Ted Blankenship, one of Eddie's league to make the run of wins an good pitchers, is out of it with a seven half dozen this afternoon.

cracked finger, so the chances of the Chisox for any real accomplishment this season seem to be wrecked.

FRED WINGFIELD and Alphonse Thomas had a bird of a pitching duel in the opener. Big Jacobson ruined it by slipping a double past third in the seventh. The Boys Wha converted into the afternoon's only run. Not a man reached first on the Chicago chucker until Gaston singled with one gone in the sixth. But Jake's double settled matters and kept the winning string intact.

Wingfield was but a bit more frequently than his rivals, but had the stuff in the pinches. He was helped out of a couple two shaky occasions by Boyd and Johnny Tobin.

Old Guard Shine in Net Title Play

Forest Hills, New York, Aug. 20.—With Helen Wills, the schoolgirl champion of the tennis younger element absent, the old guard swept on towards the finals in the match's of the fourth day of play in the national women s tennis championship.

Exhibiting the perfection of stroke and the court craft which has for a decade enabled them to retain their position at the head of America's women tennis elite, Molla Mallory, Elizabeth Ryan and Mary K. Browne slashed their way into the round of eight.

Little Miss Margaret Blake, who is playing in the bracket in which Miss Helen Wills was placed, was the only one of the unseeded players to gain the quarter-finals.

Metropolitan champion, Mrs. Edna Rower. The Southern girl won Miss Eleanor Goss, the New York star, and Miss Martha Hayard ranking player of the country, also won their matches.

Maloney Expects to Meet Wills

John McGrath, manager of Jim Maloney, South Boston fighting Irishman, received an offer of $10,000 for Maloney to fight Jack Renault in the main bout at Coney Island Stadium late in September.

The offer, coming from Humbert Fugazy, means that Maloney has come back to his former high position in the heavyweight ranks and is once more regarded as one of the leading prospects in the country.

McGrath turned down the offer for two reasons. The first is that he believes the south Boston heavyweight will be the opponent of Harry Wills at the Polo Grounds on Columbus Day, and the second and greatest is that the Irish-American heavyweight wants to fight here for a home crowd once more.

How to Succeed in Keeping Outgo in Bounds

Budget Talk No. 133.
By MARTHA LEE.

I AM so glad that you find these family histories interesting. They are just honest-to-goodness stories of plain people. Many of their problems are no doubt parallel to your problems. The solutions they have found may be just the solutions that will help you.

Today I want to tell you about a farmer, his wife and four children, whose income last year was $1,747, $800 of which was in cash.

This farmer is now forty years of age. He is also fifty. The four children range from seven to eight. The father is an industrious man. As a boy he went to school Winters, but only got a smattering of the three R's. When he was twenty-one, having saved his earnings as a farm hand and accumulated enough money for tools, stock and household furniture, he bought an 87-acre farm on a hill. He married. The mortgage was paid up in eight years.

Today is a farmer of a man of fine character, a leader in his community, a deacon in the church, a choir leader and Sunday school superintendent.

His wife is devoted to him and the children, and he relies on her excellent judgment. With the help of her daughters, who are ten and eight, she does all the housework and sewing, makes butter and tends poultry. She also does some cooking for the neighbors, which is paid for in butter.

The boy of eighteen is working as a neighboring farm. The other three go to school Winters, the boys of twelve, a husky lad, really does the work of a man in the Summer. The social life of this family centres around the church, as has that of their ancestors for generations.

They plan to have the children further education by going to high school and altogether the future looks bright. Habits of industry and thrift have been established. The family health is excellent.

Since the farm was paid for, they have been using their savings to buy a house on the outskirts of the town, fifteen miles away, and here they are planning to live so that the children may receive better education and social advantages.

The have from the first been Budgeters, but, of course, their Budget does not contain as many details as the average working-man's, since much of the family income is on a barter basis.

However, the farm bought seven teen years ago is now valued at $8,000. They have accumulated $1,126 worth of stock and tools. This, added to the town house, which they have bought at $2,500, makes their property worth $6,675. They pay no rent, as the house is part of the farm property, so it has been considered $1,787. The father has earned $50 by outside work.

From this amount must be deducted the cost of fertilizer, fire insurance and tools, which has amounted to $110, leaving a balance of $1,727. Eight hundred dollars was realized in cash by the sale of the farm products. The rest of the produce from the farm served as food for the family and animals and was traded for labor during the harvesting season.

Otherwise, the income from the farm is really much more than $1,727, as it includes rent for the house, fuel cut in Winter from the wood lot, the use of the vehicles for pleasure, the upkeep of the house and the savings that the father has been able to make through his skill in mending farm implements. If only one-third of the surplus farm products are used for food, the amount would be over $800.

Here we have both an economic and social success. Health, contentment, upright living and a fine family that will have a better start than their parents. All this has been accomplished by an uneducated couple on a farm.

There is no question but that Budget deserves credit for a major share of the success for haphazard spending and no definite allotment for savings could never have brought about these happy results.

No matter what your occupation Budget can help you.

pected in the near future are anxious to lay something aside. Husband makes $36 weekly. Keeps $2.50 for spending money. Rent is $5 a week, gas and electricity $3 a month, washing 80c every other week; insurance 30c weekly on one policy and $42 a year for another, $2 weekly for milk. Family of two adults, a 12-year-old girl and a 19 months bab; Savings $2 weekly. Want to save for coal and doctor's bills. Have a little money in the bank, but don't want to touch it.

Let's start by budgeting the minimum allowance for food for an adult man, which is 84c daily and for an adult woman, 43c, 36c for a girl of 12 and 1.26c for a child of 19 months. Here you have a daily food allowance of $1.65 or $10.85 a week. This will leave you $8 for savings, $5.50 for shelter and business carfares, $4 for clothing and $5.65 for personal. Savings and insurance come out of the savings fund. Husband's spending money and the doctor's bill out of personal.

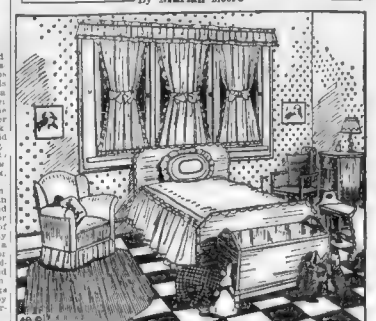
Mrs. S. H. B. believes a budget will be her salvation. Husband has met with business reverses. Owns a store. Most of the income goes to pay interest on notes, taxes, rent, back bills, etc. Only luxuries are an occasional movie and a bridge club meeting once a week, 55c, and 50c for a girl to stay with children for the evening. Would like to know what a fair average would be for living expenses. No carfares. Pays $10 a month on washing machine and probably $1 or $2 a week for service.

Since you must live on a minimum Budget for the time being, let's see how little you can get along with. First let's consider food, since we must eat to live. A minimum food allowance for an adult man is 84c a day and 43c for an adult woman, 26c for a child of 7, 22c for the 5-year-old and 36c for the baby. You have a minimum food budget of $11.49 weekly. Payment for the washing machine will come out of operating. This amounts to $2.23 weekly. You will need allow another $2 weekly for coal, $1.35 a month for electricity, 75c monthly for gas and $1.50 monthly for household lishings and sundries and $2.75 a month for recreation, pleasure, carfares and other outings. For clothing and toilet articles, $6.74 monthly to be allowed for husband, $6.82 for wife, $5.65 for girl of 12, $4.36 for girl of 7, $4.36 and $3.14 for the two littlest children.

With these figures and the general principles that 10 per cent. of the total family income should be used for savings, 20 per cent. for rent and business carfares, 25 per cent. for food and 15 per cent. for operating, 15 per cent. for clothing and 15 per cent. for personal, I am sure you can live satisfactory thereon. It is almost impossible for me to do this for you, having no idea of what your average weekly income would be

Furnishing the Home

By Marian Moore



FEW people can afford an extra room for the child guest, but your own child's nursery, if properly equipped, easily accommodates the little visitor. Maybe the bed is large enough for two, if not, a cot can be added for a few days and daintily trimmed to match the room.

I should like you all, who are soon going to send Betty or Tom to kindergarten for the first time, to sense this opportunity for a complete change in the child's mode of living, beginning with his removal from your bedroom into a regular room of his own.

Entertaining the child guest is one of the many circumstances when the nursery will prove a source of comfort to the grownups and of joy to the little ones. Some of the children's meals can be served there, simplifying the hostess' task when a dinner party has been planned.

There also they may play without taxing the patience of the older folks, and have ten times more fun while being much safer from harm and mischief than if they were given the run of the house.

I want to call your attention to the wooden chest at the foot of the bed. It is a regular treasure chest. In it, toys are kept which otherwise would litter the floors or get mixed with dainty dresses and small shoes. It comes enameled in ivory, baby-blue or pink, with a mural decalcomanias

Martha Lee's Reliable Pointers and Recipes

AUGUST is the month given by old Mother Nature to help out the earnest housekeeper. It's the ideal time to take a look in the meat bill and let out a seam in the sainted account. The earth is teeming with vegetables, and fresh vegetables are the most potent aids to health, beauty and growth ever invented for the benefit of the human family. They are also cheap in August.

"But my family won't eat vegetables," so many of you say. Nonsense, of course they will, if you cook them correctly (the vegetables, not the family.) Maybe you have let all the natural goodness run down the kitchen sink and served a flat, mushy mass at the table. Let me tell you how. They flood jolly, tender young vegetables with lukewarm water, put them on the stove in a closely-covered kettle and leave them there until it is convenient to remember them. And you feed the stubbornly refuse to like vegetables.

Try for a change a meal of fresh, vigorously boiling water. Then be careful to have just enough water to cover the vegetable and let this boil down toward the end of the cooking and cook as possible. Next add salt—1 teaspoon to each quart of water—but only add it after the vegetable is fully in the boiling water and the boiling is again active. Last, and most important, only boil until tender. Not a moment longer. Remember that every minute it boils, valuable mineral salts are being dissolved and you want to retain as much of them as possible. Don't let the water stop boiling. If the addition of the cold vegetables stops it for a moment, put on 3 more long enough to start it up again. As a rule, however, it is better to cook them with the cover off.

Use as little water as I said. Just enough to cover. When cooking greens no more than a cup of water should be used. The water which clings to spinach after washing is sufficient for boiling. And never throw away the water after your vegetables are done. Pure food values will go trickling down the drain if you do. Boil it down, add some milk and make a thin cream sauce for your veg etables, or put it away for the basis of an excellent cream soup. Use it in gravies and chowders, but whatever you do, don't waste the best part of your purchase.

Here are a few general suggestions of the time to boil vegetables. It depends somewhat upon the age of the plant, as anyone who has tried to cook elderly string beans will know. Lima beans take 45 minutes, young beans the same. Allow 50 minutes for average string beans. Whole carrots are tender in about 30 minutes, while sliced they require only 13. Onions of medium size take 18 minutes, small size only 10. Peas should take 20, but again age is a determining factor. New potatoes are done after 25 minutes. Ten minutes is enough for Summer squash, if it is cut into half-inch dice. While turnips whole take 30 minutes, diced into half-inch pieces about 20.

Corn is travelling in the fields, and ears are growing while you watch. Soon you will be asking me to tell you how to eat a side buttery ear of corn gracefully in public. But I can't tell you, for I never knew. It's best to forget the public, for all men are brothers when it comes to eating an ear of corn.

However, I will tell you about some corn and pepper ramekins which are wonderfully good. Chop a pepper and a pimento together and add to 2 cupfuls of canned corn. Season with 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar, 1 teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper and add half-cupful of milk. Fill greased ramekins one-third full, sprinkle with layers of fine bread crumbs, then put in another layer of the mixture and continue until the dishes are filled, having crumbs on the top. Dot over with tomato catsup with butter and bake in a hot oven for 12 minutes.

Another specially delicious way to serve corn as a luncheon dish is to cut off 2 cupfuls of corn from the cob and cook for 5 minutes after it begins to boil in 1½ cupfuls of thin cream or whole milk. Stewed tomatoes may be used instead of milk. Season with 1 teaspoonful of salt, a bunch of parsley, 1 teaspoonful of sugar and 2 tablespoonfuls of butter. Turn into a shallow dish lined with hot, thin buttered toast. Garnish with sprigs of parsley and narrow strips of crisp, curly bacon.

Fresh corn and red peppers make a dish that turns the family opposition to vegetables into ardent requests for "more." Take 12 ears of sweet corn and cut the kernels from the cob. Scrape them so as to get the milk. Then scald 2 green peppers in water to which one-quarter teaspoonful of soda has been added. Put 3 tablespoonfuls of fat in a hot skillet (butter, oil, or fat may be used) and add the corn and peppers. Pour in 1 cupful of milk, season with 1½ tablespoonfuls of salt and one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper. Cook slowly until done. It should be slightly browned. Roll three-quarter cupfuls of rice until tender in salted water and drain in a colander. This may be stirred mixed with the corn or served separately.

Yours for the month of August,

Beauty of Middle Age

By LUCY LOWELL.

"A WOMAN of forty who looks her age should be ashamed of herself. She is either stupid or lazy—or both."

This is what a woman writer and lecturer on [illegible] said to me the other day.

I thought of it a few evenings later when I met The Beauty.

She wasn't always called that. The Beauty. Indeed I've been told that a long time ago—twenty years or so ago—she was called The Freak.

She was twenty-five then and awkward. Her hair wasn't any age and color, and her dress lacked something, and so did her personality.

It wasn't her fault, of course. She'd lived long enough for youthful freshness to wear off and not long enough—but wait!

She wandered along with life till she passed the milestone—forty. And then time touched her hair and it lost its colorlessness and became silver. And a line or two showed beside her lips and at the corners of her eyes.

Her eyes became soft with rather long watching the moods and mistakes and achievements of others.

And on this evening she had dressed herself in silver gray, and had hung a string of pearls about her throat and put a silver-colored Spanish comb in her hair.

And so her friends called her "The Beauty"—this ugly duckling turned swan! And she was the past forty and looked every day of her age.

Nearly forty years went into the making of that beauty. Supposing she had stopped growing older at twenty-five or thirty-three or thirty nine!

I don't believe the woman who looks her age at forty should be ashamed of herself.

It is the woman who looks selfish and discontented and cross at any age who should be ashamed

LIFE'S a riddle, few can tell if men live it ill or well, chance and chance are ever here, life's a riddle, vague and queer. Life's a riddle, no man knows what his portion, joys or woes; no man, seeking, can foresee what his lot next day will be. Yet each goes upon his quest certain, some way all is best. Is the future dim? It hides joys that wait upon its tides! And the fault cannot see much of all that is to be lends its hope and promise near: all men's future days are fair! Life's a riddle, this we know as its changes come and go; pass it sigh and now rejoice! yet still all things for the best

CHAPTER LVII.

THE morning of Merry Locke's twenty-eighth birthday was a day she never was to forget so long as she lived.

She sat up in bed, yawning. Then suddenly she remembered that perhangers were coming to paper the hall and the downstairs sitting room.

It was not until she was out of bed and standing before her mirror that she remembered that this was her birthday. Her twenty-eighth birthday!

"I can't believe I'm really twenty-eight," she said to herself. "What thing I know I'll be an old maid."

She laughed at the thought, and then wondered if she ever would be married. George Leet was still coming to see her every Wednesday and Sunday night, as he had been coming for five years.

George never would marry while his mother lived. He said so. He had only enough money to support himself and her. Poor George.

"But I don't believe I'd marry him even if I had the chance," Merry thought.

She was almost contented, these days. She worked all day, and she read a great deal.

She liked stories about married life best. Or stories of adventure. The other kind, the books about the Eve of a man and a girl, she never read. They made her unhappy and restless.

She didn't know why. But she learned to leave them alone, just as she had trained herself not to think about Tony Gaines.

She never thought about him any more. That is, hardly ever.

But that morning something happened that filled every niche and corner of her mind and heart and soul with him, again, after eight long years!

"I wish you'd stay home today and help me clean," Mona said to her.

Merry put on an old calico dress. "All right, here I am," she told Mona cheerfully, when she went downstairs.

The space between the wall and the mopboard that ran around the floor in the hall was filled with dust. Merry decided to try scraping it out.

She slipped a ruler between the baseboard and the wall. Little rolls of dust came tumbling out, and then, suddenly, the ruler stuck.

Something was holding it—something that felt like a wad of paper. All at once the ruler brought it forth from its hiding place. It was a wad of paper, a folded wad of envelope with a two-cent stamp and a special delivery stamp on it!

Merry's mouth began to tremble. Without looking at the handwriting on the envelope she knew what it was—the special delivery letter from Tony Gaines! The letter that had disappeared so mysteriously, so long ago.

Shaking All Over, She Got Up From Her Knees

Shaking all over she got up from her knees, and went upstairs to her own room.

There she opened it and read it the letter that she should have read on a summer night, eight years ago. The letter that could have changed her whole life, if someone had not folded it up and hidden it there behind the loose mopboard!

"Dearest" Tony had written, and Merry shut her wet eyelids as she looked at the word. It was almost like hearing his voice say "dearest" close against her ear.

It was a minute or two before she could see again to read through the blinding tears that flooded to her eyes.

"Dearest, I am going away in a few days. To Billings, Montana, where my father's friend, Judge Bannerman, is going to take me into his law office. I've been waiting to hear from you, and as your mother no doubt has told you, I've called at the house twice. Let's not be fools any more, Merry. Let's get married now, today, and go to Montana together.

"Yours,

"Jimmy."

Merry sat, still as a statute, holding it in her hand. The boyish impulsive letter that the boy, Tony, had written eight years before. She wondered if the grown man, who had married in Montana, ever thought of that last night he had spent here, in this town, probably waiting for her to telephone him.

Suddenly, with a little whimpering cry, she turned and flung herself across the bed, shaking with terrible sobs. Shaken with helpless grief. Crying as she had not cried for eight years, and knowing as she did it, that it was too late to cry now.

It may have been a half hour afterward that Merry knew no one who had put the letter there, where she had found it.

"But," said the Sheriff, "trying to get away from a horned owl. Harmless things, them bats."

I shuddered.

Moths whizzed by. Owls hooted. Once as we drove by a farm with its conglomerate animal odors mingling with the freshness of the loam and the perfume of the apple orchards a dog barked. And then suddenly we drove into a grove where tree boughs hung low and birds twittered as we disturbed their rest.

"This brings us out on Archer side of Goodson's," said the Sheriff.

"Across the tracks from where you found our car," I said.

"Sounds as if you had been there before," he muttered.

Then we came out into a semi-circle of open ground from which a narrow path led into thick darkness beyond. A fierce detonation broke on my ears.

"Dynamite," the sheriff said.

There was silence for a few moments and then a vortex of sounds which disentangled themselves finally into hoots and jeers and yowls of derision. Words, phrases, objurgations, exclamations flew about like missiles.

"Stop back!" was the sheriff's order, followed by a tug which drew me back into the woods behind the semi-circle.

Presently men began to come up the path that evidently led from the arena of that semi-circle to the pool beyond. They straggled along wearily, looking dishevelled, bedraggled, dirty and wet for the most part.

Figures began to stand out. I recognized Bertie Linzard, blindfolded and strapped by the wrists to a burly farmer I did not know. Next came Nick Perry, likewise shackled to a chap I recognized as the clerk of the drug store down in the village. Bringing up the rear was Jim. He was stepping along freely and almost jauntily. He gave me the odd impression of actually enjoying himself. Slouching along at his side was Tommy Haley's father.

Haley Senior stepped to a little natural rise in the ground almost directly opposite the spot where McCandless and I were hiding. He looked around him belligerently as he said gruffly:

"We'll dispense with ceremonials tonight. We got things that require action—and that might be just as well if we didn't waste no time nor put no ideas into the heads of the folks and neighbors."

"The Red Palm," I murmured, not realizing I had spoken aloud until McCandless said, warningly:

"Be careful. What do you mean, anyhow?"

"Nothing," I protested, hoping he would forget my ill-advised exclamation and wondering what it had conveyed to his mind.

But Haley Senior was speaking again and I concentrated to get every word.

"We ain't found nothing in the pool and we got to consider what neighbor Harrison says, that Arlette had lots of reasons for wanting to get away and study with a teacher in the city, so's she could make somethings of herself. Shall we listen to what he's got to say?"

There were catcalls and screeches. In the midst of it all stepped forward and held up his hand. Silence followed. Then I knew that for good or for ill Jim had become leader of that mob of rough and uncouth men who were intent on mischief—murder perhaps—unless Jim could stop them.

"Listen to me, fellows," said Jim.

And as the uncouth mob, there in the clearing beyond Goodson's Siding, shuffled and coughed and fell silent, it was clear that Jim held them in the palm of the hand he was holding high as a signal for silence.

"Arlette Valleau left here of her own free will and for reasons that I'm in a position to be sure of," he said.

"I like his nerve," muttered Sheriff McCandless. "He ain't afeared to speak his mind. I guess you'd be almighty proud of him if you weren't like most wives about having your husband know the secrets of pretty nigh egg that ain't kin to them."

His cynicism hurt the more because there was so much truth in his theory at least as far as I was concerned.

"Arlette went to a great teacher of singing in the city," Jim went on. "This woman—Madame Isturzi—is a friend of mine. She felt sure Arlette had a great future if only she could study and make herself ready to appear before the critics who expect folks to know everything if they're going to do anything."

A laugh greeted Jim's implied criticism of all culture greater than that of our little community.

"What was Arlette around here?" Jim demanded.

"Nick Perry's slave," someone shouted.

There was another laugh. But this one was menacing and bore no hints of the good natured friendliness that greeted Jim's sally.

"His ward"—Jim corrected.

Cat calls and shouts that she was a servant at least were drowned as Jim interrupted. "But I'm waiting to get silence again and went on firmly:

That Afternoon at 4 She Was on Her Way to Cassie's

That afternoon at 4 o'clock she was on her way to Cassie's.

All day she had gone around the house, with a face like white flint.

She sat in a corner of the street car watching two or three young flappers across the aisle. Cute young things with shingled hair and painted cheeks and bright eyes. "They're nineteen or twenty—just about the age I was when Tony wrote this letter to me," Merry thought, holding it between her hands. "I wonder if he'd still like me if he could see me now."

She knew she was as pretty as she ever had been. The flappers looked now and then at her admiring glance at her. For all their youth, she was better looking than any of them.

"But I've changed," she thought, as the car started the climb to Cassie's house. "Maybe I don't look much different, but I feel shop-worn somehow."

She thought once more of Cassie, who, without any doubt, had hidden the letter from her. And her face was set to the mood of hatred as she started up the drive to Cassie's house.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

The next chapter of "Tarnished Wings," a vitally interesting one, tells how Cassie "explained" the letter from Tony, and what Merry did. Do you think she wrote Tony Gaines? See the next chapter.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

I AM a girl of nineteen. About seven months ago I met a young man who appeared to be interested in me. I thought him very sensible. We went together very steadily for about three months, then we had an argument.

After we "broke up" he wrote me several letters. He also sent me a present. After that he called up and asked to come and see me. But every month he mentioned, it happened I had an engagement.

He said he would come some other time without getting any definite date. But the weeks and months have flown by and he never has called.

I like him even better than before. What can I do to renew our friendship? Shall I write him a letter?

TROUBLESOME.

SOMETIMES when you are inviting a few of your friends to your home for an informal party, send a note inviting your friend to be one of your guests. If he comes, do everything you can to give him a charming time. This invitation may convince him that you are still interested and wish to cultivate his friendship.

Lose Your Heart But Keep Your Head! -:-

DRAWN BY POPINI

LOOK out, Boy, don't let go of your head! Because now that you've lost your heart, you'll need your head every second of the time to take care of your heart. It keeps you in a whir,—and a mighty dizzy one at that, but it's only a part of the game. Love decrees that you lose your heart—but hang on to your head. Don't let a thing get you out of it. Now don't say "you can't help it"—for you can, you really can. Of course, she knows a lot more about it than you do, but you need it to guide your wandering heart. So be careful! For if your head and heart both are gone—well, then comes tragedy.—POPINI.

Making of a Husband

FOR a long time we drove ahead in silence that was broken once or twice by the cry of a far-away loon whose eerie note struck terror to my heart. Tree toads called. A sleepy raccoon twitted softly. Wings brushed my cheeks briefly and I caught a damp, musty odor.

"Bat," said the Sheriff, "trying to get away from a horned owl. Harmless things, them bats."

I shuddered.

"Across the tracks from where you found our car," I said.

"Sounds as if you had been there before," he muttered.

Then we came out into a semi-circle of open ground from which a narrow path led into thick darkness beyond. A fierce detonation broke on my ears.

"Dynamite," the sheriff said.

There was silence for a few moments and then a vortex of sounds which disentangled themselves finally into hoots and jeers and yowls of derision. Words, phrases, objurgations, exclamations flew about like missiles.

"Stop back!" was the sheriff's order, followed by a tug which drew me back into the woods behind the semi-circle.

Presently men began to come up the path that evidently led from the arena of that semi-circle to the pool beyond. They straggled along wearily, looking dishevelled, bedraggled, dirty and wet for the most part.

Figures began to stand out. I recognized Bertie Linzard, blindfolded and strapped by the wrists to a burly farmer I did not know. Next came Nick Perry, likewise shackled to a chap I recognized as the clerk of the drug store down in the village. Bringing up the rear was Jim. He was stepping along freely and almost jauntily. He gave me the odd impression of actually enjoying himself. Slouching along at his side was Tommy Haley's father.

Haley Senior stepped to a little natural rise in the ground almost directly opposite the spot where McCandless and I were hiding. He looked around him belligerently as he said gruffly:

"We'll dispense with ceremonials tonight. We got things that require action—and that might be just as well if we didn't waste no time nor put no ideas into the heads of the folks and neighbors."

"The Red Palm," I murmured, not realizing I had spoken aloud until McCandless said, warningly:

ON "IDLE GOSSIP"

MANY WOMEN need to think
Of THEMSELVES as the
FLOWERS in the GARDEN
Of LIFE, and it seems
MEN were considered
BEES. And Oh! how
BLACK those BEES were PAINTED.
It was, of course, ASSUMED
That EVERY bee ROBBED the FLOWER he visited, and
That the HONEY was taken
BY FORCE.
THE BUSY BEES were even
ACCUSED of possessing
A sense of SWOLLEN
Self-importance.

As they flew off with Their LOOT And
When the BEE had GONE, the poor flower just
WILTED and DIED!
But THAT WAS just
IDLE GOSSIP
BEES always BUZZ to ANNOUNCE their coming, and
They hover around before
They take the honey
That is OFFERED from
Wide-open petals.
Bees ALSO PASS OVER
SOME flowers ALTOGETHER.
And maybe THIS was
Where the GOSSIP started.

suicide of a girl . . . he thought he would be found here . . . he thought he could I was going to implicate him . . . to master the baby on him."

"And mean he dicked out to frame an alibi."

"Something like that. He wouldn't risk being found here anyway, with that scandal thread hanging over his head."

Kelvin found her lips with burning kisses.

"There's no woman in the world like you!" he breathed. "Never has been—never will be!"

Joslyn, overwrought beyond restraint, surrendered herself to his caresses with an abandon that was more nervous than affectionate.

"I know I had to get him out. . . . I don't think I'm quite right in the head. He looks all right, but he's cracked . . . somehow. But he's a coward, too; it's his pride and ego that drives him on. It came to me like a revelation. . . . I was guided . . . the only way to strike back at him."

Into a deep cushioned chair Kelvin sank with Joslyn on his lap. "Heaven help us, honey," he said mentally exhausted. "I don't know where we're drifting . . . the police! be here any minute now . . ."

"From Brierhalter?"

"Of course. He'll tip 'em—"

"You're wrong—I think. He's probably scurrying like a frightened rabbit at this minute for his home. He's afraid . . . worse than we are, Jim . . . you've got to trust my intuition. Brierhalter at this minute is seeing his nine o'clock callers . . . Dying Girl Names Rich Broker. . . . That's the way lies are notified you'll know he did it as looking to him, Jim. And he wants to be in a position to repudiate the whole thing."

Out of the corner of his eyelid Kelvin watched Jim narrowly. He could see that his statement had struck home. Jim was thinking it over carefully, weighing it. Kelvin's own mind was working at lightning speed. Jim must not suspect that he was playing a game. He must not suspect that Kelvin was using him as a tool. MEDBURY SAYS—

AN Illinois fellow was arrested the other evening for spooning with his own wife in their car. The law is more than a match for the two cardinals even with females.

THE judge hasn't decided the case yet but he will probably convict him of making love under false pretenses.

THE poor groom must have thought that the parking privilege went along with the marriage license.

THE law has to stop wedding couples from spooning on the public roads or there won't be any space left for single people.

STILL, there shouldn't be any ordinance prohibiting a bride and groom from spending their honeymoon in the back of a flivver.

WHEN it comes to spooning, why should single couples have all the privileges?

EVEN a married man is entitled to some fun.

HE wants to get all the pleasure he can out of life before he starts paying alimony.

THE honeymoon is over when the groom keeps both hands on the wheel.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

WHATEVER else I may have lost, like coins from careless hands, this wealth alone I cherish most: someone who understands. Someone to smile when I am gay, to share my joy and glee, someone to keep dark fears away that else might threaten me. Whatever else the years may bring, this gift I first demand; a heart that's glad when I would sing, someone to understand. For life would be a cheerless way for my lone journey, a starless night, a sunless day, a year without its Spring, if it were not for that one boon that brightens sea and land and keeps the universe in tune; someone to understand, keep my fears away when I rejoice, to keep my fears away, someone to lift a lilting voice and give the year its May!

LAST night I hear the mocking-bird on seas of song embark; what sudden joyousness it stirred, that singing in the dark! The lilting notes were clear and sweet, their beauty soaring far, as though the happy bird would greet some distant, shining star. Girt round with shadows still it sang, undaunted, through the night its roundelay as gaily rang as in the dawning's light. And strangely night's dark threats were lost, its terrors swept aside, while, ah-crew-like, golden notes were tossed into its sombre tide. Song rose and fell in cadenced bliss till Earth seemed all night; one little bird wrought change like this, just singing through the night! All nights, all days, such change could be, such glory from a spark, would men but go triumphantly, just singing through the dark!

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

GOLF scores have been very low this season—chiefly owing to astigmatism among golfers, caused by looking at each other's blazers.

* * *

The greatest shock a man can receive is to discover that the alluring figure he has been admiring on the beach is merely his own wife in a new bathing suit.

* * *

A man hates to "take back" anything he has said, but a woman never minds swallowing her words—because there are always plenty more where those came from.

* * *

Most wives have a hard time recognising "the life of the party," as the same man who grouched around the house all morning.

* * *

Many a perfectly good husband, who has been trained to eat out of tin cans is being thoroughly SPOILED, by the kind, sympathetic friends who insist on feeding him while his wife is away.

* * *

A vain woman sees only her own reflection when she gazes into a man's eyes—but a jealous woman always sees ANOTHER woman's reflection.

* * *

The only time when a man really wants a girl to have "common sense" is when it comes to taking his casual love-making in the light, airy and irresponsible spirit in which it was intended.

* * *

An attractive man with a permanent weakness for women is about as much comfort to any woman as a fancy rubber bathing cap with a pinhole in it.

* * *

An innocent, unprotected young man should be very sure of his heart before giving it into a strong woman's keeping these day. He may never get it back again, in the same perfect condition.

* * *

You may claim a heart-collector's feet and his conscience with legal ties, but his eye and his imagination will still continue to roam its Happy Hunting Grounds.

FADS AND FANCIES

Placing a time limit upon shopping expenditures, the newest large envelope purses—now carried by fashionable shoppers — carry a watch on the outside. Set in a cabochon effect of marcasite and jade, such a watch is most decorative as well as convenient, and is mounted upon an envelope of black antelope.

Fish nets may be used for various kinds of fishing, each of which are equally good sport. She who "fishes" for admiration will be greatly assisted through wearing fish net silk stockings of a shade to match her frock. These novelty hose are greatly favored in Paris and are cleverly imitated, at half the cost of the imported ones, by American mills.

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By William F. Kirk

PA bringed hoam three gold fish in a Glob last nite. a Glob is a big round glass dish in wich gold fish is kep in. it looks pritty to us but it looks like Sing Sing to a gold fish.

I wish you haddent brot them hoam, deer, sed Ma, we never had any luck with gold fish. Sumthing always happens to them. Usuilly it is the cat, sed Ma.

Then why not git rid of the cat? sed Pa.

I wud as soon think of losing my life as losing Tabby, sed Ma. Deer old Tabby, she has been in the house nine yeers this week, sed Ma. She is one of our fambly cirkel, sed Ma.

She wuddent be one of our fambly cirkel very long if I had my way, sed Pa. I doe-test cats.

They are moar useful than silly gold fish, sed Ma. All a gold fish can do is to swim around & around, sed Ma. It has no lofferty ambishun in life, sed Ma. It has no ideels, no aspirashuns, no soul, sed Ma.

How much dreems & aspirashuns & soul has a cat got? sed Pa.

Cats keep the house free of mice, sed Ma.

There hasent been a mouse in this naborhood for yeers, sed Pa. This is a modern appartiment, sed Pa. Mice are not part of the color skeem in this flat, deer, sed Pa. You know yourself there is no such thing as a mouse around here.

They are afrade to stay here, on account of Tabby, sed Ma.

Rats, sed Pa.

No, mice, sed Ma, mice wud over run this hoam if Tabby wasent on guard here day & nite, sed Ma.

Well, sed Pa, a few cute littel mice wud be nice play mates for the gold fish, sed Pa, & thay wuddent eet the gold fish the way a cruel cat does.

I think you better talk these silly fish back ware you got them, sed Ma.

Not me, sed Pa. I like gold fish. There is a air of welth & refinement about a gold fish, sed Pa, wich is N-tirely lacking in a vulligar cat, sed Pa.

Our cat is not vulligar, sed Ma, our cat is a refined Mallerteese, proud & hauty as a duchess, sed Ma. That is what I like about cats, sed Ma. A dog will mix with anybody & play with ragged littel boys, but a cat is moar X-clusiv sed Ma. My fokes always were X-clusiv, sed Ma, & they liked X-clusiv pets.

Yure fokes cuddent afford to keap dogs, sed Pa, dogs eet so much moar than cats.

Then Ma looked at Pa jest like our cat looks wen you rub her fur back-words, every time I git a chanse I rub our cat's fur back-words, wen Ma aint looking. I am like Pa, I aint got no time for cats. But I mite as well addermit that I aint got no time for gold fish either, I know it will be my job to feed them & emptY the water & change it for fresh water, that is work & I aint looking for no new chores.

One Naval Gold Brick Ought to Be Enough for a While

Six years ago the United States was well on its way to becoming the world's first naval power. Continuance for a short time of its 1916 naval program would have made it unchallengeable on the seas.

Then came the Washington arms limitation conference of 1921, in which the Harding Administration, with a lordly gesture, threw our supremacy away—a bit of folly against which this newspaper at the time vigorously but vainly protested.

Stupid as it was, the sacrifice was made with good intention. Reaction against war was in the air. Sentimentalists were hoping for an early Utopia, when battle flags would all be furled, cannon spiked, spears beaten into pruning hooks and beneficent peace brood lovingly throughout the world.

So this peace-loving Republic scrapped its unfinished capital ships, accepted a limited naval ratio, and fatuously expected the spirit of the compact to be observed by the other parties to it with the same fine faith that animated itself.

The Washington conference, it is true, committed itself on paper with respect to only two classes of warships—battleships and aircraft carriers.

It left outside its technical scope all other floating agencies of battle.

But it is simply a quibble to maintain that popular belief in the United States, the body of opinion upon which the Harding Administration relied to sanction its costly sacrifice, read into the compact only its literal, technical meaning.

Public opinion in America expected and fatuously believed that the nations signatory to this compact would limit all naval strength to the 5-5-3 ratio. Otherwise, it would never have assented to making its own navy the goat.

What has happened?

Since 1921 the only vessels laid down for the American Government have been two aircraft carriers, two cruisers and a few submarines.

In the same period Great Britain has begun ELEVEN cruisers; Japan has laid down two aircraft carriers, TWELVE cruisers, TWENTY-SEVEN destroyers and TWENTY-ONE submarines; France, pleading poverty on her debt, is building SIX cruisers, THIRTY destroyers and THIRTY-ONE submarines; while Italy's contribution is TWO cruisers, SIXTEEN destroyers and TWELVE submarines.

Clearly peace-loving but credulous American opinion has been BUNKED!

It matters little now whether it was bunked by British propaganda, as Rear Admiral W. L. Rodgers contended the other day at Williamstown, or by its own mushy and exuberant sentimentalists; the fact remains that it needs DEBUNKING.

There are rumors that our Government is thinking of calling another limitation conference to complete the job so badly bungled in 1921.

Our advice to Uncle Sam is to keep out of tricky international conferences and compacts, but prepare hereafter to paddle his own canoe and MAKE IT AMPLE.

What Do You Drink?

Here's Information

It might interest proud spirited Americans to know what they drink when they buy from their bootlegger some of that "guaranteed pre-war stuff."

Bootleg whiskey is made largely from denatured alcohol that is redistilled, colored, flavored and made into "pre-war." Government "Formula No. 6" for denaturing alcohol adds to 100 gallons of pure alcohol the following: 2 gallons of benzol, ½ gallon of benzine or kerosene, and ¼ gallon of pyridine bases.

The Government, finding that bootleg customers will DRINK that sort of stuff redistilled, has withdrawn "Formula No. 6," also "No. 2," which included two gallons of wood alcohol—Nos. 6 and 2 being too mild.

Now the Government uses GASOLINE in denaturing alcohol and thus far bootleggers haven't found a way to take from the alcohol enough gasoline to make possible the necessary "pre-war" taste.

Not only do fools actually DRINK bootleg whiskey, of which chemists say that ninety-eight per cent. of samples submitted contain wood alcohol, but it is actually considered impolite to refuse to drink your friend's bootleg because it might hurt his feelings. Why not join a suicide club and be done with it?

Where Crime Begins

Demonstrations were carried on recently at the Louisiana State University showing that hypnotism does not affect the moral code of an individual.

A young man was chosen who was known to be of honest character. After he was hypnotized he was taken to a store, shown an open till, and told to steal money from it.

He walked directly to the till, started to reach for the money several times, but drew back each time and refused to obey the commands of the hypnotist.

A breakdown in morals does not come suddenly.

The change takes place gradually, little by little, in the mind.

Dishonesty begins inside.

"A criminal is always a mental criminal first."

Overtime

Every hour, a Harvard savant informs us, the sun is giving off enough energy to heat three trillion cubic miles of water from freezing to boiling.

We don't know how much water that is. But this Summer the glorious orb must have been throwing in some overtime.

SEEKING RELIABLE, USEFUL PLANES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

MR. FORD tells what he is doing to make airplanes as safe and cheap as motorcars.

This economic necessity is being used for the perfection of this new vehicle of travel.

This is much better than government subsidy or support.

It is better for any industry to grow naturally and to grow commercially by the law of supply and demand than to attempt to force its progress by government aid.

Ford said he is looking for two things—ability to accomplish the most ton miles per horsepower, and the ability to stay in the air the most hours per day.

If he can do these things he will make the airplane reliable and useful, and capital will be attracted to its manufacture.

First he wants a real airplane engine, air cooled and without electric ignition, if possible.

Second, he wants an absolutely dependable navigation apparatus.

He is working on these points and it is only a matter of time until he succeeds.

He commenced making airplanes in April, 1925, so he has had a little more than a year of experience with all-metal planes. During this time the planes have been flying daily except Sunday two hundred and sixty miles to Chicago and return, and one hundred and twenty-seven miles to Cleveland and return.

Not a single accident has occurred since this service began and the planes ordinarily arrive on time.

This statement must be modified, however, by the fact that Ross Kirkpatrick, an aviator on one of the machines, was killed in a forced landing in the outskirts of Chicago during a storm on May 18, 1926.

Experiments have shown that thus far the cost of transportation can be brought well within commercial limits and the service can be made speedy and reliable.

When it is demonstrated that the airplane is commercially useful it will be rapidly developed and be easily converted into an instrument of defense in case it is needed.

LOOK TO THE FUTURE FOR THAT SON OF YOURS

That son of yours who completed a college course this year is giving you considerable anxiety.

You want to see him settle on a job and a job with a good salary attached.

Perhaps you are stressing the money involved more than the future.

You have spent so much on that college career that you have come to think that money is of prime importance.

Your son should get into the job that means greater prospects ahead rather than a large salary this year.

The places that pay unusual salaries to those who have little experience are not often permanently worthwhile.

Don't let your son settle on something that will stunt his ambition. Don't encourage him to try the easiest way.

Consider first what the opportunities are for future growth. Find out if the effort involved is commensurate with the pay and vice versa. Some occupations never pay well, no matter how far you advance. Look to the future, not to the moment.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

HERE'S a typical twentieth century problem involving a nice point of ethics. What would you do if you were Amy?

Amy is a young married woman, pretty, refined, the product of a conventional New England home. Howard, her husband, is a breezy Westerner, a man of high personal standards, but reared under a less conventional code. They have two children, aged 5 and 7. They have been very happy until recently.

A year ago a certain wealthy man became interested in Howard's brokerage business and was taken in as a partner. Both Amy and Howard found him to be delightful and invited him to their home. Whereupon it developed that he was married, and gossip speedily acquainted them with the fact that the wife was a lady with a past—a most sensational and unpleasant past. A buxom, hennaed hussy with a lively line and a generous taste in cocktails. Amy shuddered.

"She's perfectly terrible!" she cried. "We can't possibly have anything to do with a woman like that."

"Don't be so fussy," said Howard. "Nobody's asking you to adopt her. It won't hurt us to swing wide with them once in a while."

"She looks BAD and she is BAD," insisted Amy hotly. "And no woman with a character like that is coming into my home."

Must Rub Shoulders

"Oh, be yourself," snorted Howard. "You talk like a Pure Food Act. It's none of your business what those people have done. You and I aren't elected to sit in judgment on them. That sort of thing went out with the Puritans. You could make those distinctions in some little village in Vermont, but it's different in the big city. You've got to rub shoulders with all kinds of people and be nice to them, whether you like them or not. What's more—remember the man is my partner. He's helping earn the money we live on. I share his money. I can't very well refuse to share his society. I don't ask you to get chummy with them, but there are certain social obligations we can't refuse."

But Amy insisted that she wouldn't "sacrifice her principles."

"All right, keep your old principles," said Howard, and went off to dinner at his partner's house without telling Amy. Then Amy found out about it, and there were tears and reproaches.

"Why didn't you tell me?" she cried.

"Why should I tell you, when all you do is crab?" says he.

So now Amy wants to know if I don't think Howard's terrible. Isn't there just one standard of Right and isn't here IT?

No, Amy, there isn't just one standard of right. There are dozens of standards, all overlaping and interlocking, and each man picks his own way through the tangle.

I respect your feeling about the sanctity of the home, but it seems to me that you're overlooking several other important sanctities in your insistence on this one. For instance, how about the sanctity of Howard's standards? He truly believes that tolerance is a greater virtue than prudishness. You insist that he should respect YOUR standard but you won't respect his. You peeve when he puts his standard in practice and goes off for dinner with the P's. If you're going to insist on exercising your principles, it's only fair to let him exercise his without protest.

Wreck Her Home

"But if I let him go his way

while I go mine, I'll be dividing my home," cries Amy.

Yes, my dear, that's exactly what will happen.

By "protecting" your home for the sake of your principles you'll wreck it as surely as if you didn't have principles. So if you really wish to keep your husband, and save your home for your little boy I'm afraid you'll have to compromise. You'll have to weigh one principle against the other, see which really is the more important in the scheme of things.

And if you'll stop to think, you'll find that this weighing of relative values is the basis of all true morality. The moral code isn't based on the prejudice of any one person. It serves the lives of ALL people living at the same time under a similar environment. Each one of those persons must sacrifice his own prejudices, compromise a little—that all may mutually profit.

That's the only true—"right."

Big Bottle, Small Officer

But the Bottle Is Getting Bigger

What Chance Has Justice Against This Bootleg Bottle?

You remember the old picture of the fat beer drinker and the little dog. The fat gentleman, his stomach sticking out about a yard, is looking all around, saying "Doggie, doggie, where is that—dog?" And all the while the little dog is sitting on its hind legs out of sight under the fat man's stomach.

That was a popular picture in the days of light beer and plenty of it.

This cartoon, by Robert Carr, in the Bridgeport Post, is the picture of today.

The bootleg bottle has OUTGROWN THE LAW. It has grown so big and powerful that it can't even SEE the enemy supposed to lock it up in jail.

The old beer drinker asked, "Where is that—dog?" The modern bootlegger asks, "Where IS that cop, or prohibition officer?"

When bootleg sees the officer, sometimes it SHOOTS him, sometimes it DEFIES him, quite often it BUYS HIM.

This excellent picture of bootlegging and prohibition as they really are is recommended to the attention of those who think that a law can be enforced when workingmen DISLIKE it, and rich men DESPISE it.

He Liked Jail

When John Walterson, of Belfast, was sentenced for three months in jail by the Magistrate for theft, he asked, "Can't you make it six?"

"I guess so," was the answer.

Walterson is seventy years old and has spent fifty-two years in jail. He says he likes living in prison.

This is one instance where prison has ceased to be a punishment and has become a habit.

POETRY OF LOGIC SOLVES MYSTERY

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

UNKNOWN to the great majority of the increasing flocks of tourists who yearly enjoy the marvels and beauties of Yellowstone Park, there has existed there for a long time a weird aeolian mystery, upon which a most interesting light has now been shed by Dr. Hugh M. Smith. The mystery is best described in Chittenden's book on the Yellowstone as follows:

"A most singular and interesting acoustic phenomenon of this region, although rarely noted by tourists, is the occurrence of strange and indefinable sounds. They have long been noted by explorers, but only in the vicinity of Shoshone and Yellowstone lakes.

"They seem to occur in the morning and to last only for a moment. They have an apparent motion through the air, the general direction noted by writers being from north to south.

"They resemble the ringing of telegraph wires or the humming of a swarm of bees, beginning softly in the distance, growing rapidly plainer until directly overhead, and then fading as rapidly in the opposite direction.

"Although this phenomenon has been made the subject of scientific study no rational explanation of it has ever been advanced."

Power of Curiosity

The explanation given by Dr. Smith in a letter to Science, while dissipating the mystery in one sense, heightens the surprise of the reader that such effects as he describes can arise from so simple a cause.

It is also an example of the power of scientific curiosity, exercised under the guidance of a healthy belief in the unvarying law of cause and effect, to clear away the mental fogs in which legends and superstitions flourish.

Dr. Smith was in Yellowstone Park with a companion. One morning they pushed off in their canoe from the shingly beach at the south end of Shoshone Lake, headed northward.

The surface of the lake was glassy, the air still, the sky cloudless, but with a faint haze hanging over the water.

"The canoe had barely gotten under way and was not more than twenty metres from the shore when there suddenly arose a musical sound of rare sweetness, rich timbre and full volume, whose effect was increased by the noiseless surroundings.

"The sound appeared to come from directly overhead, and both of us instinctively glanced upward; each afterward asserted that so great was his astonishment that he was almost prepared to see a pipe organ suspended in midair.

"The sound by the most perfect gradation increased in volume and pitch, reaching its climax a few seconds after the paddling was involuntarily suspended, and then rapidly growing fainter and diminishing in pitch it seemed to pass away toward the south.

"The sound lasted ten to fifteen seconds, and was subsequently adjudged to range in pitch from a little below centre C to a little above tenor C of the pianoforte, the tones blending in the most perfect chromatic scale."

Poetry of Logic

When the paddling was resumed the phenomenon recurred. Observation then showed that the sound was coincident with the motion of the canoe; when a certain speed was reached the sound was produced. Before that speed was attained there was no sound, and after that speed was lost the sound ceased. Then a search was made which disclosed the causal facts:

"A jointed bamboo salmon rod with its butt-end touching the side of the canoe was projecting backward about half a meter beyond the gunwale. The waxed silk line was reeled in, but about a meter of line with the lure at the end was wrapped several times around the terminal joint; a lead sinker weighing 100 grams was dangling from the end of the rod about five centimetres below the surface of the water.

"As the canoe moved through the water the short length of free line, held taut by the sinker, rapidly vibrated in conformity with the speed of the boat. The vibrations were transmitted through the rod to the canoe, whose thin curved, rigid sides, and bottom acted as a sounding board and gave out an augmented volume of sound that seemed to be concentrated and focused overhead."

So there is the poetry of logic substituted for the poetry of mystery.
